COURT FREES MEMBERS OF EXCLUSIVE CLUB IN SABBATH TEST CASE

The now famous Argonauta Club on Atlantic avenue won a victory in central district court today, when Chief Justice Bolster ruled that dancing by guests on the Lord's Day is not a violation of the statutes.

The Argonauta Club, Inc., with six individuals, including a woman, appeared as defendants on the charge of carrying on a public diversion on Sunday.

The defendants included Homer W. Shaw, Mrs. Muriel Shaw and Benjamin Mitchell, charged with dancing; Jean Gross, Dan Zigmond and Harry Pennington, charged with providing music, and the club corporation as proprietor and manager.

William Gaston, Jr., one of the incorporators of the club, was present in court, and the defendants were represented by Charles H. Innes. Sergt. Frank E. Gilman of Division 2 presented evidence for the government.

SAW COUPLES DANCING.

He told of visiting the club on the morning of January 10, Sunday, and finding about a dozen people dancing, with about sixty guests present in addition to members. Attorney Innes admitted that dancing was going on.

Edward Hanson, manager and secretary, testified that on the night of January 9 and the morning of

3 SAVED FROM TRAP IN SOMERVILLE BLAZE

Trapped by fire on the top floor of the two-family apartment house at No. 49 Francesca avenue, West Somerville, two women and a man were rescued today by firemen and police.

Charles F. Wood was severely burned in trying to extinguish the blaze. He was taken to Somerville Hospital after Patrolmen Croseman and O'Keefe carried him out of the house.

Firemen Burns and Melvin rescued Wood's two sisters, Miss Anna and Miss Ella Wood, who were partly overcome.

The fire started in the top floor hallway from an oil stove.

Wood awoke, choking, aroused his sisters and tried to put out the flames, while they shouted for help from the windows. A neighbor telephoned to the fire department.

BLASTS WRECK THREE OIL TANKS, 250,000 GALLONS BURN; 2 HURT

A fire and seven explosions destroyed more than 250,000 gallons of process gasoline, wrecked three huge tanks and threatened a fourth today at the Beacon Oil Company plant in Everett.

Flames that shot hundreds of feet into the air attracted thousands of spectators even in the early hours, and brought fire apparatus racing in from Everett, Chelsea, Boston and Revere.

The loss, although the fire still burned fiercely and without control five hours after its start, is set at $150,000 by fire officials as a conservative figure.

Injury to one man resulted through the spectacular blaze. Walter Perlesis, superintendent of the plant, racing to open the huge outlet pipes to draw off the gasoline when the fire started, stumbled in the dark and plunged into a ground pit of hot oil.

He was badly burned and was rushed to a hospital, where his name was placed on the danger list.

A second injury occurred when Engineer William Kehoe, attached to Engine 32 of Charlestown, called to the fire, broke his right wrist in a fall while fighting the flames.

Chief Sennott of the Boston Fire Department was one of the first on

VALENTINO IN ROLE OF WIFELESS SHEIK

Paris, Jan. 19.—Winifred Hudnut, known on the stage and screen as Natacha Rambova, was granted a divorce from Rudolph Valentino today on grounds of abandonment.

The wife was held to have retained her American citizenship, because she married Valentino on March 15, 1923, a year after the passage of the Cable act preserving the citizenship of American women marrying foreigners. This conclusion enabled the court to award her the decree.

Miss Rambova filed action in December and at the hearing on January 12 it was stated that the court believed the suit well founded. The only remaining question was that of determining her citizenship. The laws of Italy do not recognize divorce.

Miss Rambova, the daughter of a Salt Lake City man named Shaughnessy, took the name of Winifred Hudnut after her adoption by Richard Hudnut of New York.

Dispatches from Paris say Valentino sailed for America today just after the divorce was announced. He is quoted as saying he is "through with marriage forever."

"Fifi" Widener Wins Divorce From Leidy

Norristown, Pa., Jan. 19 (A.P.)—Josephine Pancoast "Fifi" Widener Leidy, daughter of Joseph E. Widener, Philadelphia multimillionaire, has been granted a divorce by the Montgomery County Court.

Mrs. Leidy, known to her friends as "Fifi," entered suit against her husband, Carter Randolph Leidy, Philadelphia, last October. The papers in the case were impounded and the grounds for the action were never made public.

The pair eloped to Knoxville, Tenn., in 1920, and then went to Asheville, N. C., to await parental forgiveness. Mr. and Mrs. Leidy have a daughter, born at Newport, R. I., in August, 1923.

"Yes, I'm Glad! Marry Again? No!" Says Winifred

New York, Jan. 19 (I.N.S.)—"Well, that's good news. I am very glad."

That was Winifred Hutnut's reaction today to dispatches from Paris saying she had won her freedom from Rudolph Valentino, movie sheik.

"Marry again?" she said, in response to a question, "well, I should say not. I haven't and won't consider it. I am going on the vaudeville stage next week."

SEDAN HITS TRUCK, 3 WOMEN, MAN HURT

Four persons were injured, one seriously, when a sedan and a motor truck collided today at Summer street boulevard and Mystic street, Arlington. The victims, who were taken to the Symmes Arlington Hospital, were Mr. and Mrs. William Stickel of No. 77 Bedford street, Billerica; Miss Ethel H. Pinheiro and Miss Rose Freitas, both of Bedford street, Billerica.

Stickel, who was in poor health, was badly shaken up and it is believed he suffered a fractured hip. His wife was cut about the head and body, and the two young women were also cut. They were riding on the truck with the driver, Roy Hill, No. 156 Belmont street, Watertown.

EXPLOSIONS WRECK THREE HUGE OIL TANKS IN EVERETT

AID IS SENT BY FOUR CITIES

the scene, giving advice on the best method of combating the fire.

Fire occurs in the process tanks, called agitators, every few months, from causes that usually are unexplained.

EXTINGUISHER FAILS.

An automatic fire extinguisher system, the Foamite, the most successful oil-flame dampener, as the extinguishing agency, is attached to each of the four great tanks, but apparently the system failed today.

Foamite smothers down oil flame as water cannot do, and forms a crust, but it had no apparent effect in the high wind that fanned today's flames.

The [illegible] to [illegible] the water [illegible] the furnaces made of the [illegible] more oxygen [illegible]

Then they [illegible] chemical streams and went to live steam, with which they attempted to beat down the fury of the blaze. All availed nothing, however, and it was feared that all four tanks with their thousands of gallons of oil being refined into gasoline, would burn.

The agitator tanks are four big tanks set in the centre of the extensive Beacon Oil Company property. In them the oil is given its first refining and then is fed out through great pipes to the next process.

When an attempt was made to draw off the half-refined gasoline following the fire's start, however, the draw-off pipe broke and it was hours before it could be repaired again.

During the progress of the fire explosions came frequently, firemen counting seven major explosions and many minor ones.

Along the length of Beacon street where a row of ramshackle buildings occupied by the company workers and their families stands, there was a dash of excitement until it was seen that the wind was the other way and that no embers were being carried.

Great tongues of flame, however, were whipped off by the wind and carried in a huge, writhing cloud for many feet during the blaze, but the wind that carried them turned them out just as quickly.

To the hundreds of early morning spectators lining in the vicinity, and who turned out of their beds to watch the fire, were added other thousands when workers began heading for their jobs.

Even commuters traveling into the North Station turned back on reaching the depot and rode out to Everett to watch the display for hours, forgetting their daily tasks.

Prisoners Taken from Cells During Fire

Eleven prisoners confined in cells in the Hanover street station were taken from their cells and herded into the front room of the building when the station was threatened by a fire that destroyed the interior of a four-story brick building at No. 19 Merchants court today.

At almost the same time 12 firemen were overcome from the fumes of chlorine gas escaping from drums on the third floor of the building at No. [illegible] Custom House street.

Two of the men, Lieutenant [illegible] Anderson of [illegible] and Edward Chamb[illegible] of Rescue Company No. 1 are in the Haymarket Relief Hospital in a serious condition.

The Merchants court fire started on the first floor, occupied by the Franklin Press and soon ate its way to the third floor, occupied by the Kamin Upholstery Company.

The flames then burst through the uppermost fourth floor to the roof.

Lieutenant John A. [illegible] and Sergeant [illegible] of the Hanover street station, fearing the flames might communicate with the station house and realizing that the 11 prisoners were in cells on the side of the building next to the building on fire, ordered all of the men into the front room where they kept them under guard until all danger was passed.

The chlorine gas fumes emanating from the Custom House street building were discovered by Patrolman Moran of the Milk street station, who sent in an alarm to fire headquarters. Several of the firemen rushed into the building without donning gas masks and were felled by the fumes.

The loss was trifling.

The loss of the Merchants court fire is estimated at [illegible]

CLUB IS FREED IN SUNDAY DANCE CASE

January 10 there were 33 guests present, not members.

He said the initiation fee of the club is $10, dues $20 a year, and there are 238 members. The witness said special guest cards are issued, whereby a guest may visit the club accompanied by a member, only once in two weeks.

Hansen testified that some of the forms of entertainment consisted of singing, recitations, fencing, exhibition dancing and boxing.

Sergeant French, recalled to the stand, read a definition on dancing from Webster's Unabridged Dictionary, which described it as two or more persons gliding, skipping, hopping or sliding to the strains of music. He maintained that outsiders were present at the club and were taking part in a public diversion on the Lord's Day.

NOT AGAINST THE LAW.

Chief Justice Bolster said he had conferred with his colleagues on the matter and they were in accord with him. He said the case rests on a statute of [illegible], put through by ministers, which forbids taking part in "any sport, game or play, or public diversion."

He said the word dancing was originally included in the bill reported by a legislative committee, but was struck out by the Legislature.

Referring to the use of the word "public," the chief justice said it did not apply to this question, as the persons in question were guests of bona fide members.

"If the club were a mere disguise and fiction," he said, "and anyone could get in as a pseudo-member by paying for a night's entertainment, no subterfuge would avail. But if there is genuine and substantial restriction of access, then it is not 'public' and is not reached by the present law."

Chief Justice Bolster then ordered each of the defendants discharged.

Dogs and Horses Share in Gould's $10,000,000 Will

White Plains, N. Y., Jan. 19 (A. P.)—The will of Charles A. Gould, head of the Gould Coupler Company, who died January 5, filed today, showed he left more than $10,000,000.

His widow, Mrs. Adelaide A. Gould, was left his country estate, Gray Rock, at Port Chester, N. Y., $25,000 cash, and the income from a $500,000 trust fund.

William E. Gould, a son, and Mrs. Celia Gould Milne, a daughter, were given $25,000 cash, and the income from a $500,000 fund.

All of Mr. Gould's dogs and horses are provided for "so long as they live" in a $20,000 fund.

13½ P. C. TAX ON CORPORATIONS

Washington, Jan. 19 (A.P.)—An increase in the corporation tax from 12½ per cent. to 13½ per cent. on all levies paid after the pending bill becomes law, was approved today by the Senate Finance Committee.

The change was made after the treasury had estimated the bill as previously ordered reported would cut taxes this year by $400,000,000 or $100,000,000 more than recommended by the administration.

As the bill now stands, it provides for a total reduction estimated at $352,000,000. Chairman Smoot will report the measure tomorrow and will try to have it taken up Monday.

Democratic members voted solidly against increasing the corporation tax. Senator Simmons of North Carolina, ranking Democrat on the committee, had proposed instead that the treasury make up for the increased total of the bill by applying foreign war debt payments to the cost of the sinking fund by which the public debt is retired.

'U. S. COWARDLY TO JOIN LEAGUE VIA COURT' of full information on which to base a decision. The proposal was laid aside under the rules.

The battle against the Court then was taken up by Senator Hiram Johnson, Republican, California, who declared membership in the Court inevitably would lead the United States into European political entanglements.

"Joining the Court under reservations by which we would avoid every question of consequence," Senator Johnson said, "will make us the coward among nations of the world."

He denounced the "propaganda" which he said was flooding the country, particularly the churches and women's organizations, "which points out that the sole and only means of getting world peace is by joining this court."

"COWARDLY TO DODGE."

"If we are going into the League," said Senator Johnson, "I as an American, with flag flying and head high, prefer to go into the League by the front door as America ought to go, and not to sneak in by a side entrance or the back door or be shoved through a trapdoor into the League.

"It is utterly impossible that we can join a part of the league and not ultimately join the whole league.

"We say we are going to join the court, but hold aloof from it. What kind of position is that for the United States to put itself in? It can't be that we can maintain such a position as that. If we do we will be made the laughing stock of the world."

SEVEN POINTS AGAINST IT.

Johnson gave seven reasons for his unqualified opposition.

1—If the court has as little authority to enforce decisions as its friends insist, it would be futile for the United States to join.

2—The Hague tribunal offers the same prospects for settling international disputes.

3—It will take the United States into the League.

4—If it has power, America should not submit questions to a court composed of foreigners with viewpoints different from ours.

5—It wrenches the United States from a policy of isolation 140 years old.

6—It may involve the United States in European quarrels.

7—It will make the United States a "poltroon" among world nations.

Johnson frankly announced he expected defeat but that the final word would be spoken by the American people at the next election. The entry to the court, he added, would be due solely to the "poisonous propaganda" circulated by so-called peace organizations. The court propaganda, Johnson said, was fostered by those who expect to profit out of taking the United States into Europe.

Propaganda also influenced the Harding disarmament conference, Johnson said.

"Why, if we go into this court, the day may come when they'll take Uncle Sam, the creditor of the world, and subject him to the judgment of his debtors."

HOUSE STARTS AVIATION INQUIRY

Washington, Jan. 19 (A.P.)—For the fourth time within a year the virtues and shortcomings of the army air service came under review here today at a public hearing.

With a view to corrective legislation, the House Military Committee began an inquiry covering ground similar to that covered in turn by the House Aircraft Committee, the President's air board and the Mitchell court-martial.

QUICK MOBOLIZATION.

The immediate business before the military committee when it began its hearing today was a bill by Representative Hill, Republican, Maryland, proposing a department of national defence with under-secretaries for the army, the navy and air. The proposal failed to receive the approval of the air board.

Representative Hill told the committee his plan would enormously decrease expenses and "secure that co-ordination in time of peace of all defense activities which is essential, not six months after an emergency arises, but immediately upon the development of the necessity for a defense situation.

MITCHELL AT HEARING.

To aid in the drafting of an air service bill the War Department made public an outline of the Congressional action it considers necessary to carry out the recommendations of the air board. Some of the amendments proposed were:

Appointment of a Second Assistant Secretary of War to supervise aviation. Appointment of three assistant army chiefs with the rank of brigadier-general. More pay and extra government life insurance for flyers. Provisions to expand the training of enlisted men as pilots.

Colonel William Mitchell, whose public attacks on present air policies led to his conviction by court martial, was a spectator at the hearing and will testify later unless the War Department objects.

Farnan Parker, fourteen, having just flown alone in an airplane from Anderson, Ind., to Philadelphia, was to go before the committee.

SCHOOL BARS 8 NEW FEVER 'SUSPECTS'

Parents and Councilmen Seek in Vain to Close Dorchester Building During Scare

While parents and two city councillors today sought the closing of the John Marshall School on Westville street, Dorchester, because of the fear of an epidemic of scarlet fever, and city health authorities scoffed at the fears that had been aroused, eight more pupils were sent home after an examination by school physician, Dr. Bradford Kemp.

This makes the list of actual scarlet fever victims who are pupils of the school seventeen, while thirty-seven have been sent home and excluded from school as "suspects."

City Councillors McMahon and McGrath conferred with Mayor Nichols today and they got into communication with the School Committee on the question of closing the school until all danger of an epidemic is over. The school is in Councillor McMahon's district, while the district of Councillor McGrath abuts on the fever-stricken sector.

SCOFFS AT DANGER.

When the politicians were closeted with Mayor Nichols he simply turned over to them the statement sent him by Health Commissioner Mahoney, which says in effect that the people of the district are making much ado about nothing.

"In view of the unnecessary alarm and hysteria by parents and others," reads Dr. Mahoney's statement, "due to a few cases of scarlet fever in the Dorchester district, it is best to say that there is less scarlet fever in Dorchester, and in the whole of Boston, than in preceding years.

"The situation in the John Marshall School is typical of similar instances in past years which have been handled successfully by the school medical authorities. The parents may rest assured that there is no greater danger of the spread of scarlet fever now than at any other time in the history of the city.

CASES ONLY AVERAGE.

"The department of school hygiene and the health department of the city are co-operating at all times in the development of a program of sound child health, and the reducing to a minimum the spread of communicable disease.

"Since November 1 there have been 20 cases of scarlet fever in the John Marshall school district, and of this number nine have been reported since January 1, showing no greater incidence than in previous years."

NICHOLS PICKS MORE ADVISORS

George H. Lyman, former collector of the port, and Sidney S. Conrad, merchant, were today appointed by Mayor Nichols as additional members to the municipal committee on ways and means which he created to advise him on matters of administration.

The Mayor announced that a subcommittee of the main committee on ways and means was working in co-operation with the finance commission.

The mayor believes that the finance commission should take up every avenue of expenditure and consult in detail with the ways and means committee. H. B. Sawyer is chairman of this sub-committee, which comprises Louis E. Kirstein, George R. Nutter, Richard S. Teeling and Miss Marguerite Souther.

In describing this particular body the Mayor said that it was the best committee of business men he had ever known in the history of the city.

STORM MINERS' FOOD STATION

Shamokin, Pa., Jan. 19 (A.P.).—Persons seeking food and clothing at the Chamber of Commerce's community relief station today stormed the entrance to the building and the confusion became so great that the doors were locked.

A patrolman was summoned to keep order and hold applicants in line.

Four hundred persons, wives and children of idle anthracite miners, started to gather at the station early in the day.

'CLUBBER' KILLS 7TH VICTIM

Toledo, O., Jan. 19 (A.P.).—The body of Mary Handley, 42, seventh victim of a "clubber" in Toledo in less than a year, was found early today in a yard next to her home. Her head was crushed and she had been gagged with strips of cloth torn from her clothing.

Blood stains on the sidewalk, police said, indicated Miss Handley had been attacked there and dragged into the yard. The body was found by Mrs. Mattie Sturrell. It was covered with a raincoat.

TRIPLETS' MOTHER IS AIDED

Lynn Youth Gives Blood in Transfusion to Save Woman's Life

A strong and rugged youth of 19, Payson MacLaine, today cheerfully gave a pint of his blood at Lynn Hospital that Mrs. Charles H. Barry, mother of triplets, might live.

The blood transfusion, physicians believe, was successful and the mother is showing improvement already.

MacLaine, chosen from 35 volunteers, is the son of Mrs. Elizabeth MacLaine, widow, of No. 89 Tracey ave., Lynn. Because of his healthy physique and rugged constitution, the youth was selected from the hero group that came forward at the call of the hospital for volunteers.

The youth, buoyed up by the hope that his sacrifice would save the life of the mother, never lost his cheerfulness during the transfusion.

VICTIM OF PRIVATION.

Mrs. Barry whose home is at No. 99 Buffum street was taken to the hospital a week ago in a critical condition. The triplets were born on December 23. The father, Charles H. Barry, was missing. He returned later and was charged with non-support but he went to work and is now contributing to the family's support.

Want and privation, however, made inroads into the vitality of the mother and her strength ebbed. Finally hospital authorities sent out a call for volunteers. Thirty-five responded including men and women ranging in age from nineteen to forty-five.

DASHED TO HOSPITAL.

MacLaine's father, William E. MacLaine, who was treasurer of the George J. Kelley Company, manufacturers of stains and dyes, died last September.

The young man, when he read of the call for volunteers in the Boston Evening American grabbed his ton Evening American, grabbed his and hurried to the hospital.

He will receive the nominal fee of $25 for his sacrifice.

The transfusion took half an hour and was performed by Dr. Alfred Leach of the Lynn Hospital staff. Veins in MacLaine's right arm above the elbow were punctured six times to get the necessary amount of blood.

MacLaine smiled as he entered the hospital office, saying that he didn't mind the operation at all.

"I'll do it again if necessary," he said.

"Stole" for Her

Martha C. Morecroft.

Salem, Jan. 19.—S. Russell Ingalls, former Swampscott tax collector, whose donwfall resulted from his attempt to support a wife, maintain an automobile and court Miss Martha Morecroft of Salem with lavish gifts on the side, pleaded not guilty to embezzlement when arraigned in Superior Court, in spite of a previous confession the police say he made.

With Ingalls was arraigned Frederic A. Cressy, former tax collector of Beverly. Both were indicted secretly and their arrests were a surprise because it was understood they were making restitution. They were held in $2,000.

Following the disclosure of an embezzlement of $3,000 in town funds in August, 1921, Ingalls was said by police to have confessed to showering attentions and gifts on Miss Morecroft, who thought he was unmarried and expected him to marry her. She knew him as "Jimmy Rogers," and suffered severely when she learned he had duped her.

Ingalls' salary, on which he tried to manage his dual life, was $33 a week. After the discovery of the embezzlement his father mortgaged his home to make up the shortage.

SECOND ROMANCE REVEALED

Former Brockton Cleric Won Fame With Decalogues on Love, Marriage, Husbands

The "Ten Commandments for Wives and Husbands," which reverberated through the United States some years ago from the tongue of Rev. Dr. Albert Marion Hyde of Brockton had their echo today in news of Dr. Hyde's divorce.

The divorce was kept secret until members of his old flock at the Porter Congregational Church, Brockton, started asking questions after first receiving word of his marriage on December 18, 1925, to Miss Erva Landis of Ithaca, N. Y., in Lakeland, Fla.

Both Mr. Hyde and his second wife are Chautauqua workers. Dr. Hyde, after leaving Brockton, established a reputation for himself as lecturer and field superintendent of Chautauqua circuits in the West and South.

DECALOGUES ON LOVE.

Dr. Hyde was acclaimed fifteen years ago as the champion writer of commandments since Moses himself, his list including clever decalogues for wives, husbands, youths, maidens and others.

"Thou shalt not marry for a bank account nor to escape being an old maid," he declared in his decalogue to wives.

"After thy marriage thou shalt not put on an old wrapper and leave thy hair on the bureau and wear slippers run down at the heel.

"Thou shalt not be a slave of fashion.

"Thou shalt not be a gossip.

"Thou shalt not be out of sorts when thy neighbor in a limousine smiles at thee in a trolley car.

ADVICE TO HUSBANDS.

"Thou shalt not let loose on thy husband, or thy sons, or thy daughters, or thy father, on ironing day, or wash day, or baking day or even in housecleaning time. If thy tongue is hung in the middle and wags at both ends, thy husband will remember it is his lodge night."

And for husbands his "Ten Commandments" included: "Do not have nervous prostration when your wife asks you to go out with her for an evening. Do not make your wife a stranger to your check book.

"Do not make your wife a pack horse harnessed to the kitchen stove, the wash tub and the mending bag—the eight-hour man with a sixteen-hour wife needs to unionize his home."

"BIG CHAIR AND DESK MAN" IN COURT

THE CAMERA GOT ME AT LAST

Attorney Frank Murray, at left, and his client, Hyman Ullian, known as the "big chair and desk man," general manager of the Gray Furniture Company, whose bill for equipment for the new City Council chamber is protested in suit to be heard by Fred W. Mansfield as master.

Judge Crosby in Supreme Court today appointed Fred W. Mansfield as master in the case of the Boston taxpayers who are seeking an injunction restraining the city treasurer from paying the Gray Furniture Company the contract price for outfitting the new City Council chamber.

Attorney Frank Murray appeared for the furniture company and was accompanied by Hyman Ullian, general manager of the company, known as "the big chair and desk man." Ullian had no statements to make. Attorney William Drew represented the taxpayers.

The question at issue is a $16,000 contract which the city made with the Gray Furniture Company to furnish the new council chamber, which, after an investigation by the Finance Commission, was declared to be excessive.

The city has paid $3,000 on the contract and the remainder will be determined by the master. Hearings will begin in about two weeks.

NEWTON WOULD STRIP GOODWIN OF POWERS

The Newton Board of Aldermen has started a movement to take away from Frank A. Goodwin, registrar of motor vehicles, the power to veto legislation that the board might pass with reference to the exclusion of heavy trucks from residential streets. A committee was appointed to consider petitioning the Legislature for permission to exclude trucks from any thoroughfare [illegible] might deem advisable. Such an exclusion was vetoed by Registrar Goodwin previously.

MITCHELL VERDICT IS UPHELD

War Department Board of Review Approves the Decision From Legal Viewpoint

Washington, Jan. 19 (A.P.).—Conviction of Colonel William Mitchell by an army court-martial for violation of the 96th article of war was approved today by the War Department board of review insofar as legal aspects of the trial are concerned.

The trial record, with the board's report, will be forwarded probably in the next day or so to the Judge Advocate General of the Army and, after further examination by him, will be started on its way, through Secretary Davis, to President Coolidge.

Action of the board of review, which considered the record wholly from a legal standpoint, would seem to end or rest all speculation as to the constitutional right of the court to sentence Colonel Mitchell to suspension for five years from duty, command and rank in the Army, as well as to deprive him of all pay and allowances for five years.

Regardless of the recommendations Secretary Davis and General Hull may see fit to make, it is regarded likely that Mr. Coolidge will give attention to the pay forfeiture before he determines what his course of action will be.

It is within the President's power to commute all or any part of the sentence. His subordinate advisers may [illegible] and neither Secretary Davis nor General Hull has given any indication of what his recommendation will be. Some legal authorities believe it is within the range of possibilities that the President will commute the five-year suspension to two and one-half years and in addition will allow the officer some part of his regular pay and allowances.

SCHOOL IN DORCHESTER KEPT OPEN AFTER SCARLET FEVER SUSPECTS ARE SENT HOME

Gilbert Lichenstein, John Marshall school pupil, who is being detained at home by his mother, Mrs. Aaron Lichenstein of Josephine street.

Edward, brother of Gilbert, who is enjoying an enforced vacation because his mother doesn't intend to take any chance while scarlet fever threatens.

Alma Lynch of Corona street, Dorchester, who was hurried from the John Marshall school to City Hospital suffering with scarlet fever. At the hospital it is reported that the little girl is progressing satisfactorily.

Veronica Farrell of Josephine street, one of the 15 children sent home with an exclusion card by Dr. John A. Ceconi, director of hygiene in the public schools. She was said to have shown symptoms of the disease on her hands

$10,000 OFFER BY THEATRE TO NAIL RUMORS

Metropolitan Management Determined to Trace Poison Propaganda Source

A reward of $10,000 for information leading to the apprehension and conviction of the person or persons who started rumors that the Metropolitan Theatre building is defective was offered today by the management of the theatre.

The story was denied by the management in a public statement branded as a malicious lie, put in circulation with the purpose of hurting the theatre's business.

"J. R. Worcester, noted engineer, of No. 75 Milk street, has carefully examined the theatre," the management says. "In relation to the gallery he writes:

BUILDING FOUND PERFECT.

"'We have found the framework to have been well-proportioned, of amble strength and secure in every respect. Our observations of the conditions as they now exist have confirmed the conclusions drawn from our investigations of the plans that the construction is absolutely secure.

"'In addition to this investigation of the gallery we have investigated other parts of the structure and in all our examinations have found everything strictly first class in every respect.'"

Building Commissioner John H. Mahony of the city of Boston is quoted as stating:

"The Metropolitan is one of America's largest, most comfortable, most palatial and most complete theatres. As to safety, in accordance with the law which provides that it shall be examined monthly, the December 30 report shows every detail of structural condition and safety as exceptionally good."

The rumors according to the statement of the theatre owners, were spread in three ways, by word of mouth, by anonymous cards slipped stealthily into the hands of persons on the streets, and by anonymous letters.

BACKED BY LEADERS.

In one instance a version of the story has it that there is a large sign somewhere around the theatre instructing people not to enter except at their own risk, the theatre management declares.

"The rumor is silly, ridiculous and in every respect absolutely and entirely without foundation in fact," the theatre management asserts. "It is even more than that. It is an evidence of malicious evil of which every citizen may beware.

RESCUED ARCHBISHOP GUEST IN WORCESTER

Worcester, Jan. 19 (A.P.)—Archbishop Cieplak, formerly a professor at Petrograd Academy in Russia, two years ago sentenced to death by the Bolshevists and saved by intercession of the United States and other powers, was guest at a dinner here today in St. Mary's Parish Hall. Speakers included Rev. Joseph S. Dinand, S. J., president of Holy Cross College, and Very Rev. Clodoald Serieix, president of Assumption College. Pastors of all Catholic churches were present. Archbishop Cieplak will speak tonight at St. Mary's Church, whose rector, Rev. Boleslaw Bojanowski, was one of his pupils at Petrograd.

FALL RIVER LABOR LEADER FOUND DEAD IN SHACK

Fall River, Jan. 19.—Thomas Goodwin, for many years secretary of the Loom Fixers Union and treasurer of the American Federation of Textile Operators was found dead in a hunting shack by members of his family who went in search of him when he did not return. Medical Examiner William H. Blanchette said death was caused by heart trouble.

NARRAGANSETT LIGHT WON'T JOIN BIG MERGER

Providence, Jan. 19 (A.P.)—Edwin A. Barrows, president of the Narragansett Electric Lighting Company, issued a statement today following a meeting of company officers, saying his company will not join the newly organized "New England Association" which has been incorporated as the Northeaster Power Company, a $250,000,000 power syndicate. He said the directors were unanimous in desiring to maintain their company as an independent concern.

CITIZENS FIGHT PLAN FOR COMMERCIAL AREA

Moved by fear of the development of a commercial centre in their midst, residents of Waban and Newton Lower Falls flocked to the meeting of the Newton Board of Aldermen and voiced their disapproval of a petition to change land at Washington street and Waban avenue from the single resident district to the business district.

INQUEST INTO MUTE'S DEATH RESET FOR JAN. 26

The inquest into the death of Walter Moran, Natick deaf mute, set for today in Dedham District Court, was postponed until January 26. Moran was killed by Sergeant William Fleming of Wellesley police, who was pursuing him for throwing stones at automobiles. He said he thought Moran pulled a gun. Fleming was exonerated in court.

'SIREN OF SOCK' LURES MAN TO A BEATING

Victim Found Unconscious in Medford After a "Joy Ride" May Die

Another victim of the charming "Siren of Sock" was picked up unconscious in Main street, Medford, today, after he had been beaten into unconsciousness when he succumbed to the lure of thugs and accepted a motor ride in Park square, Boston.

Tony Rick, thirty, of East Boston, was the victim. His story, told at intervals of consciousness at the Lawrence Memorial Hospital, started a police investigation.

Rick said he was in Park square shortly after midnight. He had nearly $100 with him and he admitted he had been "flashing the roll." An automobile rolled up and the driver invited him to ride. Rick was about to refuse when a pretty girl smiled through the window and added her invitation. He found another man in the car. The girl was charming, said Rick, and when liquor was produced he didn't notice which way the car was traveling.

At Harvard street, Medford, the driver called to them to get out, as he had to do some repairing. Hardly had he alighted with the girl, Rick said, than the man sprang, swinging a heavy iron bar. Rick lost consciousness.

Physicians believe his skull is fractured and he is in a dangerous condition.

Rick lost no money, the police finding ninety-odd dollars in his pocket.

SCHOOL MARMS RESENT SLURS

Florence Merserve, another young school marm, who proposes to fight the superintendent's charges against comrades.

Ethel L. Johnson, Revere teacher, angry at cherge of incompetency made against teaching force by local school head.

Julia A. Fitzgerald, who says school head is all wrong when he calls the younger teachers "inexperienced and poor."

ATTACK STIRS IRE OF REVERE TEACHERS

Revere's youngest school marms are organizing to meet the assault made on their ability when Superintendent of School William C. McGinnis said in his annual report:

"We have too many inexperienced teachers in our schools now."

The aspersion of the school superintendent dropped like a bomb shell in the ranks of the younger teachers.

But Mr. McGinnis went further than that and declared in his report, "If the present policy is continued, namely, that of electing all local girls who are graduated from normal schools and colleges, the number of inexperienced teachers will increase from year to year and the number of poor teachers also."

The school committee will meet January 26, to take action on the report.

The so-called inexperienced class meet McGinnis' fire with the retort that teachers are appointed on his recommendation. That was admitted by members of the school committee.

An older teacher agreed with Mr. McGinnis' attack on incompetency but asked "Why does he recommend teachers whom he believes to be incompetent?"

Mussolini K. O.'s Kid Cupid in Army Bout

Rome, Jan. 19 (A.P.).—Girls who hope to become the wives of Italian Army officers of the rank of major or lower must be provided with dowries to insure their future husbands against poverty. If an officer of these ranks marries a girl without a dowry he will be dismissed from the army, under an order issued by Premier Mussolini, in his capacity as Minister of War.

SWIG'S PERMIT UNDER FIRE IN STATE QUIZ

Warring factions in Quincy and Wollaston over granting a dance hall license on the Wollaston boulevard to Simon Swig appeared today before the Legislative Committee on Cities at the State House.

The committee had before it a bill filed by Representative Everett R. Prout of Quincy, backed by Mayor Perley E. Barbour, the Rev. William B. Ayers, a Congregational minister, and a score of men and women residents. The bill proposes that the present licensing board, consisting of the fire and police chiefs and the city clerk, be abolished and a new board of five appointed by the Mayor.

Former Mayor Joseph L. Whitten, in opposition, charged the resentment of the Wollaston residents was directed "not against the building but against the man."

Former Senator David S. McIntosh defended the board and said it had made but three mistakes in six years. The people who want to change, he declared, were in favor of the legislation which created the board. He contended that a new board of five members would cost the city $10,000 a year as compared with the present cost of $300.

Asked by Chairman Alvin E. Bliss what the effect would be on the city's charter if the law was repealed, McIntosh declared it would give back to the city council the power of granting licenses. He opposed such a change on the ground it would revive "back scratching and log rolling."

The Rev. Ayers denied the petitioners were opposed to Swig personally.

7 FACE TRIAL AS THUG GANG

Seven men, believed by police to have been responsible for a series of breaks in and near Boston, were held for trial today following arraignment in Middlesex Superior Court before Judge Flynn on two indictments charging burglary and conspiracy. Four of the men were brought into court from State Prison, where they are now serving long terms.

Martin Welsh, alias "Portland Jimmie," who was arrested Sunday night as a suspect in connection with the slaying of Patrolman Robert Black of Andover, but who was exonerated, was among the first group of defendants arraigned. With him was Ray Leonard and Frank Nolan.

The first indictment charges them with breaking and entering the store of Harry Tarler at Malden on November 12 and stealing clothing. The indictment also charges they received clothing knowing it to have been stolen.

The second indictment charges them with conspiracy with intent to commit larceny.

Thomas Zene and Ernest Hamilton, of Lawrence, both serving trems in State prison on charges of robbery while armed at Chelsea, were also arraigned.

George Sharron and William Rolfe, also named in the indictment, were the others brought from State Prison to face trial. Rolfe is serving twenty-five to thirty years for robbery while armed.

RACIAL PREJUDICE LAID TO REVERE CHARITIES

Charges that favoritism, as to racial extraction, is being shown by the office of the commissioner of public welfare of Revere were made at a hearing today before the legislative committee on public service by Jacob [illegible] of that city.

He opposed a bill which would place the present commissioner, Michael [illegible], under civil service.

"I have been told that 77 per cent of the funds expended for the city in charitable work are given out in one particular instance. If the office of the commissioner of public welfare is placed under civil service it will convert the head of the department into a czar.

CHARLESTON FINDS HAVEN OF REFUGE IN—CHURCH!

Washington, Jan. 19 (A.P.)—The much-berated Charleston and other modern dancesteps will have a haven here in the new parish hall of the Church of Our Saviour.

The building also houses a bowling alley and a theatre in which was recently produced a musical comedy written by the pastor, the Rev. Edmund H. Stevens.

The church is of the Episcopal faith. The Rev. Mr. Stevens says that he sees nothing wrong about the Charleston and would rather see his congregation dancing in the parish hall than downtown.

"I don't see where the boys and girls are going to perdition just because they want to enjoy themselves," he tells objectors.

HUB PUPILS TO SAVE 'OLD IRONSIDES'

schools of the old frigate's birthplace are to have their opportunity to contribute towards her restoration.

Three of the five members of the committee have gone unreservedly on record in favor of the participation of the local schools in the "Save Old Ironsides" movement.

The formal vote will be taken on Monday evening of next week and in the meantime the Old Ironsides Committee of Boston Lodge of Elks will be rounding up its five-minute speakers.

Statements by Chairman Bogan and Committeemen O'Hare and Sullivan, issued at a meeting of the committee, mean that altogether 151,000 young Bostonians are coming to the aid of old Constitution. Letters designating Friday, February 19, as "Old Ironsides Day" in the thirty-eight Catholic schools of the city were sent out yesterday by the Rev. Augustine F. Hickey.

Favors Fund

Dr. Frederick L. Bogan, school committeeman, declares Old Ironsides is as much a part of Boston as Bunker Hill, or the Old South Church, or Dorchester Heights. The movement among school children will inspire the whole country, he says.

Dr. Bogan—I believe Old Ironsides to be as much a part of Boston as Bunker Hill, or the Old South Church, or Dorchester Heights.

Committeeman O'Hara—I am already on record in favor of giving the boys and girls of Boston this opportunity to go deeply into the story of the Constitution and add their mites to the fund for her restoration.

Committeeman Sullivan—I have always been in favor of inviting Boston pupils to take part in this great cause. I shall not take much of the committee's time now, reserving my remarks for our next meeting, when I hope and believe we will open the doors wide to the Old Ironsides essays, the Old Ironsides program, which has been prepared by the Elks, and the collection of contributions to this fund.

EDITOR SPEAKS.

Asked if he desired to address the School Committee, James T. Williams, Jr., editor of the Boston Evening American said:

"As you may have surmised, my presence is in relation to the national campaign for the restoration of the frigate Constitution. I am advised that time is requested for further deliberation, and to that request I can offer no reasonable objection because I very well know that true conclusions frequently are facilitated by ample deliberation.

"However, lest anyone may conclude that this movement for the restoration of 'Old Ironsides' is sponsored by any single agency, or by any one group of Americans, permit me to say that the great newspapers I have the honor to be associated with are merely doing their best to assist the members of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks in the patriotic task the organization has assumed with such characteristic unselfishness, and to add that the Elks themselves have enlisted with not alone the approval but the hearty encouragement, of the Navy Department.

PRESIDENT'S VIEWS.

"The President of the United States has felt so keenly that the participatiton of American children in the Save Old Ironsides movement will be beneficial, that it was he who selected the subjects for essays.

"To the Secretary of the Navy, whose own deep and sincere interest in this cause is evidenced by the appeal which lies before you, the President has written that:

"'The active service of "Old Ironsides" extending as it did over the eighty-four years from 1798 to 1882, covers the greater part of our history, and a study of her record will turn the thought of our young people to many of the most important events in the development of our nation. I therefore trust there will be widespread competition for the Old Ironsides medals, because an understanding of the fundamentals of our history is most helpful to discharging the duties of citizenship.'

"There ought to be no question, Mr. Chairman, and ladies and gentlemen, of where Boston stands, and I believe there will be no question. To me, it is inconceivable that the children of the public schools of Boston, and their mothers and fathers as well, are to be denied an opportunity to take part in the restoration by popular subscription of a gallant ship so closely linked with the name and the fame of Boston, a gallant ship now rotting in Boston Harbor, a gallant ship which, repaired, equipped and restored in accordance with the Act of Congress of last March, will remain in our Navy Yard forever, a notable addition to the many shrines which bring pilgrims to Boston from all over our country."

HER HOME A SLAYER SUSPECT'S REFUGE

Mrs. Marion Williams, Milton, whose home was used as an asylum by Stanley Ryan, Salem pugilist suspected as one of the slayers of Patrolman Robert Black, of Andover. He was found wrapped up in a blanket in hiding in her house. He fought like a tiger when discovered by the police. She is alleged to be his fiancee.

DECLARES BABY MILK POISONER WEAK IN MIND

In the alleged poisoning of the milk of his eighteen-months-old daughter Andre DeMiller of Dacia street, Roxbury, was directed by a weak mentality, declared a Psychopathic Hospital report read in Roxbury Court today.

DeMiller, alleged German army deserter, was arraigned on a charge of assault with intent to kill the daughter, little Victoria DeMiller.

DeMiller has the mind of a 12-year-old boy and is a dangerous person to be allowed at large, the hospital report said, basing the conclusion on a ten-day observation of the accused father, recommending that he be committed to an institution and that he not be released except on order of the committing court.

Judge Palmer, however, declined jurisdiction and held DeMiller in $25,000 bail for the grand jury. In default of the bond he was remanded to Charles street jail.

Accusation against the alleged German deserter was made by his wife, a Roxbury girl, who told the police she noted a peculiar taste and a bluish tint to the baby's milk when she heated it.

Upon speaking to her husband of the matter, she said, he seized the bottle, emptied the contents into the sink and hurled the container out of a window.

Enough of the liquid was retrieved, however, according to testimony, to show traces of poison.

SOLOMONT IS CHOSEN PRESIDENT OF BANK

Charles S. Smith was today elected chairman of the board of directors of the Bank of Commerce and Trust Company, and James Solomont was chosen president of the institution. Other officers elected were: Ernest L. Adams and Henry H. Learned, vice-presidents, and Frank J. Carens treasurer.

The following directors were re-elected: Ernest L. Adams, Clarence H. Blackall, Charles Goldman, William P. Hart, Henry H. Learnard, J. J. Kaplan, James T. F. McGarry, John R. Patterson, A. E. Pinanski, James Solomont, Charles S. Smith, and Michael A. Sullivan.

WALTHAM PEEPER FINED $15; CAUGHT BY CITIZEN

Looking into the windows of the residence of Melvin Downing in Chestnut street, Waltham, for no good reason cost Clinton E. Small, twenty, of Crescent street, a fine of $15 today in Waltham District Court. He was charged with disturbing the peace. Downing received a telephone call from a neighbor, Mrs. Lillian Barber, that Small was spying, and he promptly gave chase, catching Small, he testified.

H. C. Dalton President

Harold C. Dalton was elected president of the Electrical Credit Association, Inc., New England division, today at the Hotel Brunswick.

Other officers are: Frederick S. Hardy, vice-president; Charles A. Kane, secretary and treasurer, and Harold C. Dalton and James J. Shannon, directors for three years.

LAWRENCE BEER WAS SHIPPED AS 'SYRUP'

The shipment of eight carloads of beer that led to indictments in Illinois against the Boston & Maine Railroad, several of its officials and other persons was forwarded only after a sample provided by the Gilt Edge Brewery in Lawrence was tasted by Chief Clerk John C. Reardon, he testified today before U. S. Commissioner Jenney.

Reardon, General Freight Agent George H. Nicholson and Assistant Vice-President W. T. LaMoure of the Boston & Maine were in court to show cause why they should not be forced to go to Chicago to stand trial.

The cars seized in Illinois were labeled "barrels of malt syrup," according to Reardon. A man named Allen, he said, brought him a supposed sample which he smelled and tasted, and he did not consider it alcoholic. He said the brewery had made shipments in cars labeled "automobile bumpers" and "liquid oil."

"A man named Quigley came to the office and asked for three cars to make these particular shipments and I let him have them, not suspecting anything until later, when I thought it over," he said. "The brewery was warned after that to label things correctly."

LaMoure testified that "Allen" explained the brewery used such labels because prohibition agents adopted unfair methods in interfering with harmless shipments.

2 FIREMEN OVERCOME AT $30,000 WALPOLE BLAZE

Two firemen were overcome by smoke and damage estimated at $30,000 was caused by a two alarm fire in a storehouse of Bird & Sons, East Walpole, today.

The victims were Thomas Paquette of Engine 2 and Sidney Mott, hoseman of Company No. 1, both of Walpole.

The blaze, caused by spontaneous combustion, according to Chief Donnell, had obtained considerable headway when the firemen arrived. The structure was filled with paper stock and adjoining was a storehouse containing a large quantity of oil, which the firemen saved.

B. & M. BAN CALLED DEATH BLOW TO ESSEX

If the Boston & Maine Railroad is allowed to abandon its Essex branch, the town of Essex will become virtually a "deserted village," remonstrants to the plan argued today at a continued hearing before the Public Utilities Commission.

The chief industry of the town, shipbuilding, witnesses testified, would go out of existence, residential property would depreciate 50 per cent. in value and there would be a general exodus from the community.

Autoist Fined $45

Arthur H. O'Neil, who pleaded guilty of violating the automobile laws, was ordered by Judge Fosdick in the Superior Criminal Court to pay fines amounting to $45. It appeared that since 1918 O'Neil had on fifteen occasions violated automobile laws.

VOICING THE GREAT DEMOCRACY OF THE AIR

SAMUEL CURTIS, JR., Radio Editor

At 9:30 P. M., WBZA will tie in with Stations WJZ, WRC, WGY, KDKA, KYW and KFKX and broadcast the annual dinner of the M. I. T. Associated Clubs. This broadcast should be exceptionally interesting, as parts of it will come from different points. The dinner is being held in Boston, New York and Washington.

EIGHT STATIONS TIE UP FOR TECH BROADCAST

The most powerful chain of radio stations in America extending from coast to coast will be linked together with WBZ for sending the messages of the four "phantoms" at a unique phantom radio dinner to be given by the alumni of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in fifty-eight cities in every hamlet, town and city in the country tonight.

The four "phantoms," all of national prominence, who will be heard on the air tonight are Vice President Charles G. Dawes, General Harbord, president, and David Sarnoff, vice-president of the Radio Corporation of America, George Eastman, the philanthropist of Rochester, and Dr. Samuel W. Stratton, president of Technology. Vice-President Dawes and General Harbord will talk from Washington. Mr. Eastman will be heard from Rochester and Dr. Stratton will go on the air from Cambridge.

The stations which will tie in with WBZ are WJZ, New York; WGY, Schenectady; WRC, Washington; KDKA, Pittsburgh; KFKX, Hastings; KOA, Denver; KGO, Oakland, California.

PLAN TO LINK NEW ENGLAND BY PLANES

A project to link all New England by air was the ambitious scheme outlined today at the joint dinner of the Boston Chapter of the National Aeronautic Association and the Aero Club of New England, held at the City Club.

Gilbert G. Emerson launched the plan when he said his company, the Boston Airport Corporation, has already obtained an operating and sales organization in Portland, Me., and is completing a like organization at Hartford, Ct. The company intends to sell three-place planes.

The company has already introduced an innovation, the airplane traveling salesman. This pioneer was sent out in a plane from Boston, visited Hartford and then projected his strange "territory" into Brooklyn, from which city of churches he reported his first sale of a plane.

Professor Edward P. Warner of the aeronautical department of M. I. T. presided at the dinner, and other speakers included Major Ira Longnecker, Corps Area air officer; Lieutenant Reginald D. Thomas, commanding the naval station at Squantum, and Bernard Weisman, secretary of the aviation committee of the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

An air meet for Boston next Fall was discussed.

BOSTON ELEVATED SHOW ON AIR FROM WNAC

Station WNAC will broadcast direct from Symphony Hall the Boston Elevated Employes' Annual Show, "The Gypsy Girl," at 8:15 tonight. This production heard for the first time is from the pen of Eugene McDonald, of Everett, who has been training the principals and chorus, composed entirely of employes of the Boston Elevated Company and members of the Elevated Musical Clubs, since last October. More than 100 people are in the cast, which includes a list of 16 principals.

RADIO HUNT FOR LOST QUAKER TREASURER

Fearing that Ellwood Bryant Paige of No. 109 Broad street, treasurer of the Howard F. Poole Company and trustee of Friends Religious Society, who disappeared from his home Wednesday, is a victim of aphasia, relatives have sought the aid of broadcasting stations in their search, but have been unable to locate him. When last seen, he told friends he was convalescing from an attack of influenza.

Radio Queries

Q. B. M. C. Quincy. Can a 5 tube tuned radio frequency receiver radiate enough to cause "squeals" in the neighborhood?

A. Theoretically no. Unfortunately however, many of these machines are carelessly put together, and when such is the case they will frequently be impossible to control without sacrificing signal strength. There are many five tube sets in operation at the present time, which undoubtedly "squeal." The best way to tell whether your set is at fault, is to make arrangements with one of your neighbors who also has a set, to listen in for you, while you tune in some particular station. If your set squeals, the chances are, your neighbor will know it quick enough.

Q. F. A. M. Middleboro. Can a storage battery be used with a Radiola Superheterodyne? Would you recommend it?

A. A storage battery can be used to excellent advantage with such a set. You should obtain a four volt battery however, and connect it far enough away from the set so that acid fumes etc., will not do any damage.

Q. J. D. Melrose. Is it required by law that I should have my set equipped with a lightning arrester?

A. The Underwriter's rules specify that a lightning protector must be used on any receiving equipment which operates on an outside aerial. Aside from protection in case of lightning, a good arrester is an added security against damage to the set in case of heavy static discharges which might damage the windings of the coils.

DX Conditions Last Night

By "THE DOCTOR"

Conditions continue to be bad. There was a generous amount of static, which increased as the night wore on. The air was full of noise, much of which was undoubtedly caused by the wind swaying overhead wires, causing them to ground against the limbs of wet trees.

PRIZE AWARDS IN MARTHA LEE CONTEST

It was just midnight when I counted the last vote sent in by Club members in the November-December Martha Lee Club Membership Contest. I am happy to announce the following winners.

The first prize, a Hoosier kitchen cabinet, goes to Mrs. Sarah Kaplan, No. 42 Moreland street, Roxbury, Mass. She is member No. 18,307, and sent in 741 signed coupons.

Close on her heels came Mrs. Anna Skinner, No. 283 Harrison street, Manchester, N. H., No. 1,911. Mrs. Skinner persuaded 722 women to sign the membership coupon and so is awarded the A. C. Dayton radio.

The Gruen wrist watch, the third prize, is awarded to Mrs. Margaret Eaton, No. 327 Huntington avenue, Boston, No. 18,989, for 710 votes.

The fourth prize, a mahogany tea wagon, goes to Mrs. M. J. Armstrong, No. 29 Queensberry street, Boston, No. 3,068, for 699 votes.

The fifth prize, six Wedgwood service plates and six crystal soup plates, is awarded to Mrs. Mary Dawson, No. 29 Audubon road, Boston, No. 18,668, for 695 votes.

The next twenty-five prizes are the famous O'Cedar products and go to Mrs. E. M. Bowning, Lexington street, Auburndale, Mass., No. 1,685, for 158 votes; Miss E. P. Hobbs, No. 22 Peterboro street, Boston, No. 18,680, for 156 votes; Mrs. Anthony Ravida, No. 376 Dudley street, Roxbury, No. 18,685, for 150 votes; Mrs. H. G. Griffin, No. 234 3d street, So. Boston, for 138 votes; Mrs. Anna Young, No. 279A South street, Wilmington, Mass., for 128 votes; Mrs. John Hamilton, No. 480 Merrimac street, Manchester, N. H., No. 18,970, for 125 votes; Mrs. B. H. Aronson, No. 114 Wales street, Dorchester, No. 1,095, for 121 votes; Mrs. Mary Lydon, No. 153 E. street, So. Boston, No. 14,252, for 120 votes; Mrs. Lillian F. Jackson, No. 5 Codman Hill street, Roxbury, No. 1,257, for 104 votes; Mrs. Sadie M. Sacks, No. 39 Leech street, Salem, for 102 votes; Mrs. O. Alexander, No. 26 Cobden street, Roxbury, No. 2,170, for 100 votes; Mrs. Margaret E. Brown, No. Scituate, Mass., No. 21,776, for 100 votes; Mrs. Katharine E. Rand, No. 357 Commercial street, E. Braintree, No. 18,720, for 94 votes; Mrs. Emma White, No. 268 Lamartine street, Jamaica Plain, No. 15,838, for 93 votes; Mrs. A. Fatersik, No. 17 Garfield street, Jamaica Plain, No. 13,720, for 80 votes; Mrs. Nellie Herman, No. 6 Downer court, Dorchester, for 60 votes; Mrs. Alice E. Dings, No. 20 Holyoke road, W. Somerville, No. 19,426, for 56 votes; Mrs. Mabel Whitney, R. D. 1, Box 61, Derry, N. H., for 54 votes; Mrs. Anne W. Noble, No. 130 Highland street, Portland, Me., for 54 votes; Mrs. Rose De Natale (no address), No. 22,212, for 50 votes; Mrs. Pearl Freeman, No. 9 Robinson road, Saugus, No. 3,222, for 51 votes; Mrs. Atwood Wynot, No. 20 Loker street, Framingham; Mrs. S. Monahan, No. 10A Melbourne street, Dorchester, No. 16,315, for 47 votes; Mrs. E. F. Odell, No. 29 Vestry street, Beverly, for 42 votes; Mrs. Addie B. Thomas, Fort Williams, Me., No. 19,509, for 42 votes.

The next three prizes are Slade's Salesman's spice boxes, and go to Mrs. Emma Gauthier, Box 251, Suncook, N. H., for 41 votes; Mrs. Roy H. Norwood, No. 513 Norfolk street, Mattapan, No. 570, for 40 votes; and Mrs. A. E. Ridley, No. 47 Prospect avenue, Winthrop, No. 648, for 39 votes.

The next ten prizes are Slade's "Spice Shelves," and are awarded to Mrs. Richard Ramberg, No. 288 Central avenue, Needham Heights, No. 20,595, for 38 votes; Mrs. Sadie Slick, No. 20 Cedar street, North Cambridge, No. 12,011, for 35 votes; Capt. May Bartlett, No. 185 Transit street, Providence, R. I., for 35 votes; Mrs. Thomas Black, No. 65 River street, W. Newton, for 33 votes; Mrs. K. Gavin, No. 19 Wyman street, Jamaica Plain, for 30 votes; Mrs. C. Norton, No. 4 Downer court, Dorchester, for 27 votes; Mrs. Julia M. Hitchcock, Warren, for 26 votes; Mrs. Mary Holman, No. 22 Clinton street, Cambridge, for 24 votes; Mrs. Anna M. La Ducer, No. 1,290, Mass. avenue, Arlington Heights, for 23 votes; and Mrs. Cassie M. Gammons, No. 103 Broadway, Wakefield, for 20 votes.

Several of our members greatly exceeded the number of coupons sent in by the winners of the major prizes but, unfortunately, through some misunderstanding, the coupons were not signed by the prospective members, but by the members competing in the contest. This, of course, made them ineligible, as prize winners.

Special honorable mention must be awarded to Mrs. Mary F. Buckley, No. 11 Lawn avenue, Quincy, No. 2,160; Mrs. Jane M. Allen, No. 59A Circuit street, Roxbury, No. 21,675; Mrs. Edwin Johnson, No. 134 Hildreth street, Marlboro; Mrs. Olive Matson, No. 52 Montvale road, E. Woburn; Mrs. Sadie Sugar, No. 5 Grove park, Roxbury; Mrs. H. Glazier, No. 1008 No. Shore road, Revere; Mrs. M. A. Burque, Nashua, N. H., for their excellent work, even although they wer not prize winners.

SEEK TO RECOVER $2,500 FROM CARVEN AND CURLEY

Authorization to proceed to recover from City Auditor Rupert S. Carven and City Treasurer John J. Curley $2,500 spent by the city for investigating the advisability of establishing a hospital for chronic diseases on Parker Hill was sought today in the Supreme Court before Judge Crosby by counsel for George H. McCaffrey and others. The full bench had previously declared in favor of the same petitioners when they sought to prevent the expenditure being approved by the city auditor. Judge Crosby said he did not see why the respondents should not be obliged to return the money to the city treasury, but decision was withheld.

TWO THUGS ROB SALEM CLERK

Two armed thugs held up and robbed Frank Arnold of No. 80 Highland avenue, Salem, early today and robbed him of $50 in money, valuable papers and his pass on the Eastern Massachusetts Railway.

The victim of the holdup is employed as night clerk, at the Salem car barns of the Eastern Massachusetts Railway.

RULE 'LEAD GAS' IS NOT HAZARD

Washington, Jan. 19 (A.P.).—Commercial gasoline containing tetraethyl lead is not a hazard to the public health and there is no reason why its sale should be prohibited under proper regulation, Surgeon-General Cumming, of the Public Health Service, was informed today by a committee appointed to study the subject.

The investigation was ordered by the Surgeon-General last May as a result of the death of five workers at the Bayway, N. J., plant of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

The report of the committee was based upon a study of 252 individuals exposed in various degrees to the exhaust fumes of the gas and who had handled and distributed tetraethyl lead gasoline.

No cases were discovered of lead poisoning or other disease resulting from the use of ethyl gasoline, the report said.

H. C. TO DEFEND JESUIT THESIS

Worcester, Jan. 19 (A.P.).—Joseph C. Fenton, Springfield, member of the senior class at Holy Cross College, has been selected to represent the college in a public defence of the Jesuit thesis of philosophy against representatives of any colleges in the United States in a contest to be held at Holy Cross.

Fenton will outline the Jesuit thesis and defend them by answering questions propounded by representatives of the other colleges in the audience. He was selected for the honor after a contest among the seniors.

LONG OPPOSES BILL TO GIVE PARENT TAX REBATE

The legislative Committee on Taxation today heard the bill of Senator William I. Hennessey of Boston, under the provisions of which the head of a family would be allowed an exemption of $250 for any of his children attending high school or college. The measure was opposed vigorously by Henry F. Long, commissioner of corporations and taxation.

Choose your "B" batteries correctly

THE life of your "B" batteries depends on their size in relation to your set and on how long you listen in each day. Here are the simple rules which tell the right size "B" battery to use:

On 1 to 3 tubes—Use Eveready No. 772.

On 4 or more tubes—Use the Heavy Duty "B" Batteries, either No. 770, or the even longer-lived Eveready Layerbilt No. 486.

On all but single tube sets—Use a "C" battery.

When these rules are followed, the No. 772 will last for a year or more, and the Heavy Duties for eight months or longer, when listening at the year-round average of two hours a day.

NOTE: An Eveready "C" Battery not only increases the life of the "B" batteries, but adds a quality of reproduction unobtainable without it.

LINER SCYTHIA LANDS 148 AT EAST BOSTON

In remarkable contrast to the reports of transatlantic ships arriving at Boston recently, Captain Prothero, of the Cunarder Scythia, which docked here today, declared the trip was like one in midsummer. Fog off Boston Light was the first untoward weather of the passage.

Of 287 passengers, 148 debarked at East Boston. The remainder are going to New York in the liner. Boies Pilnik of London, who fought in Kolchak's White Army as a captain, was among those in the liner. He is barred from Soviet Russia, but is now on his way to Manchuria to purchase hides and skins.

Mrs. Edward H. Erne of New York arrived wearing a pair of the new Russian boots. With her was Mrs. C. Kean, also of New York.

C. Stuart Lawry of a London tailor supply party, reports overseas woolens will feature light goods with stripes and checks on somewhat new and novel lines.

To teach at the Providence school of the Sisters of the Cross of Passion came three members of that order from Liverpool. They are Sister Louisa Grogan, Sister Ellen Hickey and Sister Margaret Finegan.

The Scythia brought the biggest lot of mail to Boston which has been received here since the days of the old unlimited immigration traffic. In all there were 2,300 sacks. Some were destined for Japan, it having been found that routing by way of the United States is the quickest.

HOOVER MOVES TO TEST HIS CONTROL OF RADIO

Washington, Jan. 19 (I.N.S.).—The way was cleared today for a court test of the power of Secretary of Commerce Hoover to allocate radio wave lengths to broadcasting stations. Hoover announced he had turned over to the Department of Justice, "for action," the case of the Zenith Radio Corporation of Chicago (WJAZ) which has arbitrarily appropriated the wave length of 329 metres normally used by Canadian stations. It is understood the district attorney at Chicago will initiate injunction proceedings against the Zenith concern.

EX-SCHOOL AGENT HELD IN $10,000 DISCREPANCY

Bangor, Me., Jan. 19 (A.P.).—Chester P. Stewart, who resigned a few days ago as school agent of Bangor, was arraigned in court on a charge of altering a written instrument. He pleaded not guilty and was held under $5,000 for the May term of the Superior Court.

County Attorney Weatherbee stated that the former agent's books were in an involved condition, and that an examination had disclosed that sums totaling from $6,000 to $10,000 had been obtained by irregular methods.

BERLIN DIDN'T GET A CHANCE AT MILLION

Ellin's Dad Denies He Offered Him Cash to Jilt Daughter

New York, Jan. 19 (A.P.).—Reports that Clarence H. Mackay had offered Irving Berlin, jazz exponent, $1,000,000 if he would jilt Mr. Mackay's daughter, Ellin, who is now the song writer's bride, were denied today as "absurd."

A statement on behalf of Hr. Mackay issued by W. J. Geegan, vice-president of the Postal Telegraph & Cable Company, of which Mr. Mackay is president, said:

"If Mr. Mackay were to deny all the stories of the last few weeks, he would have nothing else to do. He has said nothing in this case since his first statement."

This statement was that issued soon after the marrige of Berlin and Miss Mackay, in which her father said that she married without his knowledge or approval.

WHIST PARTY TO AID NEW ROXBURY SCHOOL

Members of the Two in One Circus committee of Roxbury Council K. of C. and the Immaculate Conception Court, Catholic Daughters of America, completed plans today for a whist party tomorrow evening in Patrick A. Collins Hall at the Girls' Normal School, Huntington and Lexington avenues. Proceeds will be turned over to the Redemptorist Fathers of the Mission Church, Roxbury, to help defray expenses of the new parochial school. Patrick J. Caulfield heads the arrangements committee.

ESSEX REPUBLICAN CLUB PLANS BIG LINCOLN NIGHT

This year's mid-Winter dinner and meeting of the Essex Club, the Men's Republican organization of Essex county, will take place in Salem, on February 12, and designated "Lincoln Night," it was announced today. Last year's celebration was in the form of a memorial tribute to Henry Cabot Lodge. Governor Fuller and Mayor Nichols have been invited, together with a long list of other dignitaries. Guests of honor will include prominent personages bearing the name of Lincoln or who supported his policies.

HOUSEMAID GETS BULK OF BYE'S $520,000 WILL

Atlantic City, N. J., Jan. 19 (A.P.).—Lorenzo Bye, eccentric old Margate bachelor who died December 30, leaves 70 per cent. of the income of his $520,000 estate to his housekeeper, Miss Martha H. Strasbourg, in a will filed today. Six cousins of Bye are named as alternate beneficiaries in the event Miss Strasbourg shall marry or die.

The will cuts off Bye's sister, Mrs Josephine B. Shoemaker of Philadelphia, of whom the testator state: "she is well provided for in her own right."

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Useless Club to Stage Dance Next Month At Ritz Carlton, New York

CARDS ARE GOING OUT FOR THE Useless Club dance on February 6, an annual jollification in Gotham and this year staged at the Ritz-Carleton with all the elan which Useless Club devotees have come to expect of such occasions. Certain personalities of the younger smart set in Boston are included in the favored few to whom the magic cards make their way.

BOSTON GIRLS AND young matrons whose dash and charm and chic are proverbial, and as for the masculine contingent on Useless Club guest lists—they are culled from the town's notable bachelors and benedicts. Very possibly the benedicts were themselves club members during days of single blessedness.

THIS YEAR DETAILS are in the capable hands of two New Yorkers, Haley Fiske, Jr., and Charles Arthur Clark, and the contingent going over from here is anticipating an event red-lettered even in Useless Club annals, just such as these two and their intimates stage to the queen's taste.

AS "TUBBY" CLARK, the second named is known to every Harvard graduate and undergraduate as the Crimson's best football guard in several seasons. To football glory and the accumulation of three "H's" he added thespian honors as leading man for the Hasty Pudding Club's "Barnum Was Right."

SOME TWO OR THREE years ago his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Clark, senior, had a Boston establishment on the water side of Beacon street, but recently have adopted Gotham's Park avenue as their permanent habitat. Mrs. Clark was a Kentucky beauty endowed with all the fascination of the typical Bluegrass belle.

Photograph by Garo

MRS. ROBERT BALLANTINE BRADLEY came to town for the Senior Supper Dance and was much entertained by intimates of her Phyllis Rich days in Boston.

YOUNG MR. FERLAZZO played last season for Mr. Platt and quite enthralled everyone at that time. An enthusiastic reception will be his tomorrow afternoon, and another triumph. Mrs. Marion Kingsbury, soprano soloist, adds her special charm to the program.

MRS. DUDLEY FITTS and Miss Madeline Meredith, down on the cards as accompanists, need no introduction to Boston's music world. They both enjoy a niche therein quite all their own. At the tea tables Mr. Platt will have a pupil, Miss Mary Alexander, and a patron of the arts, Mrs. George Hawley.

FOR MRS. PHILIP ANDREW'S Monday tea at the Navy Yard (she is the new and charming chatelaine of Commandant's House), wives and daughters of Navy Officers officiated as pourers.

MISS MARJORY MOODY assisted in the pleasant rite of the afternoon cup, and other Service representation was had in Mrs. Edward T. Hoopes and Miss Hoopes, wife and daughter of Commander Hoopes. Mrs. George McNulty also served.

THESE TEAS ARE a pleasantly informal festivity starring the Winter's calendar on Mondays throughout January and Feburary, and with Mrs. Andrews in the hostess role are proving specially delightful. That young officers make it an occasion for dropping in adds more than a soupcon of interest, naturally.

AFTER A BRIEF fling at debutante frivolities, Miss Anne Belknap is off to Paris on study bent. She sailed recently on the DeGrasse and by now is nearing the French city where for some six months to come she'll add perfection to her art of bookbinding.

SHE IS THE daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Belknap of Pinckney street, has studied here under Miss Sears, and now seeks new fields to conquer. Mrs. Harrison O. Apthorn of Milton also was a passenger on the DeGrasse, which took over a record list.

EDWIN A. BOARDMAN sailed on the Paris to join his family abroad, Mrs. Boardman and the two daughters, Miss Isabel and Miss Elvira, having sailed for foreign shores some time since. Mr. Boardman is a prominent Eastern Yacht Club member.

AND BOTH THE daughters emulate the father in skill at small boat sailing, an art which is brought to high perfection in the waters about Marblehead, where the Boardmans are notable figures in yachting circles. Indeed, some critics say that there are no better sailors thereabouts than the youthful Boardmans.

WILLIAM A. PARKER also sailed on the Paris, taking his small sons, William A. Parker, Jr., and Oliver Parker, with him en route to the South of France to join Mrs. Parker. They are spending another of their Winters abroad, as they have for several seasons, and are pleasantly established a lovely Mentone.

INITIATION BY CATHOLIC FORESTERS

Brookline Court Will Have Deputy High Chief Ranger Scanlan as Guest

By JAMES WALSH.

Brookline Court, No. 208, Massachusetts Catholic Order of Foresters, will initiate a class of candidates in Lawrence Hall, Chestnut Hill, tonight. Deputy High Chief Ranger T. A. Scanlan, Jr., will attend. A whist party for members of the court will be held after the regular meeting. The good of the order committee is in charge of the arrangements.

St. Joseph Court, No. 38, will hold a roll call and identification meeting in Sarsfield Hall, Hibernian Building, Roxbury, tonight. Deputy High Chief Ranger Joseph A. Cahalan, the Rev. F. L. Thomas, chaplain; Dr. W. B. Keeler, court physician, and a representative of the high standing committee will be guests of the court. Bernard J. Maraghy is chairman of the affair. M. J. Green is the secretary.

Cathedral Court No. 1 will hold the third party of a series tomorrow night in St. Rose Hall, No. 17 Worcester street, South End. Arrangements have been completed for the community meeting to be held by the joint courts of Brockton in A. O. H. Hall tomorrow night. Fitzpatrick Court, No. 13, will hold a charity whist in Walcott Hall a week from tomorrow night.

Theodore A. Lathrop, general secretary of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, will be the speaker tonight in the thirteenth annual lecture course on charitable and social problems, given in conjunction with the evening classes of the Young Men's Catholic Association, in the Boston College High School Hall, James street, South End. His subject will be "Protection of Neglected Children." The Rev. George P. O'Connor, director of the Catholic Charitable Bureau, will give a half hour's round table talk previous to the lecture.

The annual reunion of St. Benedict's parish, Somerville, will be held in Knights of Columbus Hall, Highland avenue, on Tuesday evening, Feb. 11. The Rev. William J. Foley, pastor of the church, has appointed Joseph M. Herlihy chairman of the general committee in charge. Miss E. Agnes Healy is the secretary. John J. Wholley, Albert A. Duncan and John J. Hayes, vice-chairman of the school committee, are assisting.

Robert Fulton Council, No. 134, Knights of Columbus, will have an entertainment in Bloomfield Hall, Dorchester, on Feb. 12. One of the features will be an old-time fiddlers' contest. The committee includes Thomas Murphy, chairman; Walter D. Keenan, secretary; Arthur A. McGill, treasurer; Louis M. May, G. K.; John Carew, Michael M. O'Brien, William O'Sullivan, Joseph Mar[illegible], Timothy Desmond and Edward [illegible].

St. James Branch, Arlington, Ladies' Catholic Benevolent Association, will have its installation of officers Thursday evening. Mrs. Nellie Morrissey, past president of St. Matthew's Branch, Dorchester, and treasurer of the Diocesan Chapter, will be installed president. St. Mary's Branch, Dedham, has had an increase of 25 members during the past year. A large class of new members will be initiated at the first meeting in February.

Gets Acquainted

Dr. Daniel L. Marsh, president-elect of B. U., who is in town to attend "get-together" dinner at university tonight. He takes over new post February 1.

DR. MARSH, NEW B. U. HEAD, HERE FOR DINNER

President-Elect Will Be Honor Guest at "Get-Together" Party in Hub Tonight

Dr. Daniel L. Marsh, president-elect of Boston University, arrived in Boston from Pittsburgh today for a preliminary visit to the institution which he is to head in February, and for the purpose of attending a "get-together" dinner, to be held in the University gymnasium tonight.

The dinner is the first of its kind in the history of the University and will serve to acquaint the personnel with the incoming president.

As the president-elect formerly attended B. U. School of Theology, he is no stranger to this city. Dr. Marsh received a degree from the University in 1908.

This visit of Dr. Marsh is only a brief one. When he assumes the duties of his office in February, he will be accompanied by his wife and four daughters.

The president-elect was not prepared to offer any expressions of his policy, as he believes that such will come more appropriately when he assumes office. He is expected to take over the presidency with the beginning of the second semester, February 1.

Among the other invited guests at the dinner tonight are: Governor Alvan T. Fuller, Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols and Bishop William F. Anderson, who has been acting president of B. U. since last Fall.

WAR'S HORRORS DEPICTED AT MAJESTIC

"The Big Parade" Is Greatest Film Drama Evolved From World Debacle

It was easy to expect great things of "The Big Parade" before its coming to Boston and the Majestic Theatre. It was easy to foretell that it would be one of the outstanding films of the season, but it is anything but easy for the bewildered first nighter to set about in the somewhat [illegible] condition this extraordinary photoplay leaves one, to register his impressions of what is very likely the greatest screen melodrama of them all.

It staggers the senses as did the Great War itself because it is the Great War—as near, you think, as any mortal could give it to the screen.

Compared to most any war play of the stage, it seems useless to deny that the screen, with its superior facility for display, is the better medium for such expression and, in "The Big Parade," the World War has at last received its long awaited proper treatment in the drama.

As for the story itself, it is simple—and appropriate. A boy goes to war as did millions of others. He joined the colors in the same spirit as all of them did. He was not an officer, he went to France, found a girl, he lived through tremendous experiences not by any particular valor, he was just lucky—though he was scared stiff—as everybody was—he came home minus a leg and minus decorations. And then he went back to the girl.

No trumped up intrusions of plot there, no maudlin sentiment, no flag waving—no hollow theatricalities of any kind, but the hard truth about the whole miserable business. Ask any veteran, he would be the first to detect the sham.

Photographically it is simply marvelous. Director King Vidor has accomplished wonders. Within the limitations of space it is impossible to speak of the host of fine scenic details, but if one must be selected, it is the superb "long shot" of the seemingly endless stream of soldier-laden motor trucks stretching away into the distance when the troops make the first advance. Nothing finer has ever been seen in motion pictures.

BEAUTY CHORUS AT GAYETY

"Bozo" Snyder returned to the Gayety Theatre in Barney Gerard's "Follies of the Day," and the combination is enough to warrant a good show to the lovers of glorified burlesque.

The wonderful pantomimist was never better, and his eloquence of silence had an appreciative audience laughing from the first curtain to the finale.

But "Bozo" was by no means the whole show, and the whole performance had a snap and go to it that completely won the hearts of the houseful of first nighters.

'MATINEE GIRL' AT PARK IS TUNEFUL

"The Matinee Girl" made her debut at the Park Theatre yesterday [illegible] New York appearance, and [illegible] a delightful [illegible] and a pair of nimble feet it was evident that to become the talk of the town she must develop a sense of humor.

The story, having a few changes in [illegible] and the injection of some real comedy, bears all the earmarks of a success. The score, though somewhat familiar, is exceptionally tuneful and contains more than one whistleable song. There is a plot which, to say the least, is unusual in a musical comedy, and there is plenty to satisfy the most exacting [illegible] of the tired business man. The "[illegible]" chorus that has appeared here for many a day is on hand, and [illegible] should be [illegible] to the [illegible] for gathering a group of [illegible] who can really do something.

The female side of the cast is remarkable, and why shouldn't it be with [illegible] Juliette Day [illegible] Olga Steck, in the leading part, is well cast. She has an attractive personality, is pleasing to look at and possesses a voice of light opera proportions, which can do justice to Mr. Grey's fine melodies.

The cast contains no prominent male members, although the majority, especially James Hamilton, as the matinee idol, and Jack Squire, as the playwright, fit into the scheme perfectly. Gus Shy, in the chief comedy part, does the best he can with the weak material given him.

"The Matinee Girl" is sponsored by Ed Rosenbaum and is the brain child of McElbert Moore and Bide Dudley, the latter a prominent New York columnist, whose really fine lyrics are a treat. Frank H. Grey, the composer, conducted at the initial performance.

You'll enjoy meeting "The Matinee Girl" and she'll be a big hit if someone can only tickle her in the ribs and make her laugh. Undoubtedly she'll capture Boston, and it is regrettable that she'll only be with us two weeks.

FOR Acid Stomach

PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

BETTER THAN SODA

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. Besides, it neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges this souring waste from the system without purging. It is far more pleasant to take than soda.

INVITATION IN NIGHT CLUB REVUE

"Vanities" at the Shubert Brings Audience and Stage in Intimate Contact

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

By straining hard Earl Carroll has added something to musical revue—something that never before has caught the fancy of the eager men whose activities in theatre are measured by lingerie and pink knees. The point of divergence between Mr. Carroll's "Vanities," at the Shubert and other shipments of revue that have been called to local attention from time to time is a simple flight of stairs; broad, but simple.

By the expediency of a good carpenter and a liberal interpretation of the rules of the theatre, "Vanities" opened up its beauties as an entertainment much after the style of the naughty night clubs. There was intimate contact between the stage and the audience; the broad steps leading from the stage to the orchestra were utilized frequently and with astonishing effect.

Mr. Carroll frankly calls this his "Night Club" edition and to prove the case, the chatty Charles Irwin, who served a good deal in the manner of master of ceremonies, invited everybody to come to the stage and dance—that is, if you could dance. And he coaxed Judge J. Albert Brackett to make a speech, which was no job at all, for the judge is forever itching to raise his voice in the defense of the drama.

To permanently establish the contact between player and playgoer, John F. Fitzgerald not only made a darned good speech, but sang "Sweet Adeline," thereby contributing the best musical number of the evening. Of course, that may or may not be true, but it certainly did carry its own punch and the big first night audience lifted a hearty voice in honest cheers.

As revues go and come, "Vanities" may be said to hold its own in relatively good fashion. Lester Allen filtered in and out of the rapidly changing scenes—always deliciously humorous; at times running rather close to propriety as it is figured in these virtuous regions. Mr. Allen packs away a lot of very excellent talent. He is a natural comedian; something of a clown, but always interestingly funny.

There were others, too, who put a shoulder to the wheel. Allyn King presented two dimpled shoulders; though her charms was chiefly in personal gifts of song and merriment. For distinct novelty, the Yacopi troup of Argentine acrobats held the center of the program. These elastic tumblers from below the Equator gave "Vanities" its only real sensation.

Like other revues, "Vanities" depended upon brigades of girls in gay costumes, or rather, in as little costume as the rigid regulation in such things will allow. In public restrictions Mr. Carroll had little for which to complain. But the girls did wear the despised union suits prescribed by City Hall.

Musically, "Vanities" ran true to form as revues go—it was just one song after another, broken here and there by Lester Allen's antics and Charles Irwin's vocal expositions.

SOCIETY DRAMA AT NEW BOSTON

"The Gilded Butterfly," feature film at the New Boston Theatre, is just as the title sounds—society drama of social parasites, with a moral woven in as a warning to over-indulgent parents. It is what might be termed an expose of the methods of certain gay mountebanks, better known in the jargon of the big city as "gold diggers."

The gorgeous background of the famous old Casino of Monte Carlo and the ultra-fashionable homes of Washington and New York furnish a bright background for the dark beauty of the star, Alma Rubens, a rather unfortunate heroine, who had been reared in the firm belief that, family finances to the contrary notwithstanding, the best was none too good for her.

It remains for Bert Lytell, as the dashing hero, to save her from various fates and finally to turn her wayward footsteps in the safe direction of domestic economy. There is a good supporting cast in the persons of Frank Keenan, Huntley Gordon and Vera Lewis. Short subjects and bill of vaudeville complete the program.

VIRGINIA'S SENATE HEARS LEE'S OLD NEGRO SERVANT

Richmond, Va., Jan. 19 (A.P.)—For the first time since reconstruction days, a negro spoke in the Halls of the General Assembly of Virginia today. William Mack Lee, body servant of General Robert E. Lee, addressed members of the State Senate in tribute to his former master. The 88-year-old negro spoke at length, giving his reminiscences to an audience that crowded the chamber.

SWEET DREAMS AND SWEETER DAMSEL

METROPOLITAN BEAUTY SHOW AN ART HIT

Any unprecedented notion the reluctant film-goer might gather that "The American Venus," at the Metropolitan, is merely another glorification of the bathing girl, is quickly forgotten at the outset. True, the revelations of well-displayed lingerie and swimming suits are there for the patrons of those arts, but the main thing is that Director Frank Tuttle has made a picture that would rate as perfectly fine entertainment even without his sumptuous beauty-parade display.

The prize-winners of the last Atlantic City pageant, headed by the gorgeous Fay Lamphier ("Miss America"), are the features of the spectacles, but Esther Ralston, of the films, is the most active beauty of the lot and, from the audience standpoint, is the real queen of the pulchritudinous assemblage.

The use of Technicolor for all the display sequences gives them a brilliance that could never be achieved with the ordinary gray film. In fact, the colored episodes of "The American Venus" seem to be far and away the best example of this process yet shown, and also would seem to indicate something of future developments in this line.

The story, as such, is a trifle; it is the cleverness of Miss Ralston, Ford Sterling, Laurence Gray, Edna May Oliver and, above all, Frank Tuttle and his camera that make it what it unquestionably is, one of the fine pictures of the season.

On the stage, there are two presentations and a special musical program.

HEADLINE BILL AT KEITH'S

One of the most entertaining and well balanced shows of the season is at Keith's. Each act got rounds of applause and it was hard to tell which was the best.

Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland Bronner assisted by "The Bronner Types" in an elaborate production of "Dream Fantasies" was an act far out of the ordinary.

Jimmy Hussey in "Getting a Ticket" brought many laughs from the audience.

The Gushion Twins in a musical comedy act, "Let's Dance," in which Eddie Franklin, Du Bow and Ross, and Chic Stanley were very clever.

Dave Kramer and Jack Boyle, old favorites at Keith's, helped entertain with their jokes, songs and dances.

for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible for originating a false and utterly groundless rumor.

Designing persons, with malicious intent, to whom truth, [illegible] and fair play are unknown, have originated and spre[illegible] that the new Metropolitan Theatre [illegible]

THE RUMOR IS SILLY, RIDICULOUS, AND, IN EVERY PARTICULAR, ABSOLUTELY AND ENTIRELY WITHOUT FOUNDATION

J. R. Worcester, the noted engineer, of 75 Milk Street, has carefully examined the theatre. He writes:

> We have found the frame work of th[illegible] proportioned, of ample strength and secure [illegible] respect. Our observations have confirmed the concl[illegible] ABSOLUTELY SECURE
> In addition to this investigation of the gallery, we have investigated other parts of the structure, and in all our examinations have found EVERYTHING STRICTLY FIRST CLASS IN EVERY RESPECT.

John H. Mahony, Building Commissioner of Boston, states:

> The foundations of large downtown buildings such as the Chamber of Commerce, the First National Bank, the METROPOLITAN THEATRE, the Keith-Albee Building, the Elks Building and many others reach great depths [illegible] detail of construction. The columns and girders are subjected to careful examination. [illegible] comprehensive [illegible] loads which, in order to be safe, are designed to carry about [illegible] times the load which will ever be placed upon them.
> The Metropolitan [illegible] America's largest and most [illegible] theatres. [illegible] the December 30th report shows every detail of structural condition and safety is exceptionally good.

The Metropolitan Theatre was built by the best architectural and engineering brains in the United States. Behind it is the reputation of the theatre company itself, of Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, of E. F. Albee (for thirty years known in Boston as the highest type of business man), of Publix Theaters Corporation and of Boston capital and finance representing the most substantial names in the business world.

Neither one nor any part of the above mentioned forces could ever for one moment lend their names to a proposition that was not in every respect the finest, most substantial and safest that money and the accumulated experience of years could obtain.

The consensus is that the Metropolitan Theatre has more concrete and steel construction than is ordinarily used or which either law or necessity demands.

It seems a shame that owners of great properties like the Metropolitan Theatre should be compelled to protect themselves against the insidious attacks of envious and malicious persons who have no thought in their minds except to do harm and destroy.

To further prove our sincerity we have authorized the First National Bank of Boston to pay $10,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible for originating this malicious and baseless rumor.

Coolidge Wants Congress to Let Strike Alone

Washington, Jan. 19 (A.P.)—President Coolidge's policy of non-intervention in the anthracite controversy was reiterated today at the White House with the explanation that he felt neither he nor Congress should attempt to make any move while a possibility exists that the Pennsylvania Legislature will seek to work out a solution.

MISPLAYS BY GOLF STARS COMMON

Chicago, Jan. 19 (A.P.)—Misplays of star golfers [illegible] Cruickshank are not so uncommon.

[illegible]

Just how such excellent players miss so easy a putt has never been explained. Nearly every great golfer has done it at least once, but he can never tell why. Then there is [illegible] common fault of a [illegible] golfer taking an incredible number of strokes on some hole in the midst of a round that otherwise is scored in par.

"Nearly every star golfer can recite some such slip he has made," said the tournament follower, "but the difference between them and the ordinary player is that the [illegible] do it about once in a lifetime while [illegible] so frequently [illegible] every round."

QUEEN'S COUNSEL

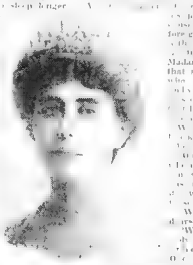
by Marie, Queen of Roumania

THE SATURDAY NIGHT MOVIE

LIKE all those of our time, we are very fond of the cinema [illegible] that you call [illegible]

As it is not easy for royal people to go to all the places where they are shown, we have instituted a Saturday night movie in our own palace.

We chose Saturday because on Sunday morning [illegible] having no lessons [illegible] sleep longer. We have kept up the good old English habit of early bed for girls till they are "out," you see!



Our movie is arranged in the hall. We sit on the first landing of the staircase. Our guests find places close behind us, and so that all the inhabitants of our household and intimate [illegible] shall take part in the fun, the numerous children of the multitude of servants, from pompous butler [illegible] stable hand, sit in front of us all down the stairs [illegible] room for many.

It is my children's great amusement the way I compose my party—and the King with a good-humored shrug of his shoulders lets me do as I want.

Delicious Desserts from Dried Fruits

NOW please [illegible] put down the paper right [illegible] and say, "We [illegible] to realize [illegible] never [illegible] dried fruits [illegible] are [illegible] king of the [illegible] [illegible] hour or so and [illegible] served as [illegible] to the [illegible] table.

Dried fruits can be first aids to the housewife, and delicious [illegible] if properly used and cooked. First, all dried fruits should be soaked over night or at least three or four hours. [illegible] just enough water to cover, usually about 2 cupfuls to each cup of fruit. Most people use too much water, which [illegible] of the juice. There should be just enough for [illegible] and a little more.

Never throw away the water in which the fruit was soaked. Bring it gradually to the simmering point with the fruit and [illegible] gently until tender [illegible]

Did you know [illegible] make [illegible] [illegible] peaches are not as [illegible] I do hope [illegible] will try loganberry pudding and [illegible]

LOGANBERRY PUDDING

1½ cups dried loganberries
3 cups cold water
1-3 cup sugar
6 slices buttered bread
2 egg whites, beaten
6 tablespoons sugar.

Soak the berries in the water over night or at least 6 or 7 hours. Add the sugar and cook [illegible] the juice about 5 minutes. Cut the bread into half inch slices and remove the crusts. Place in layers in a buttered baking dish, pouring some of the hot fruit and juice over each layer. The bread may be cut in strips to fit the dish. Bake about 15 minutes in a slow oven. Cover with a meringue made from the egg whites and the 6 tablespoons of sugar. Brown slowly and serve very cold.

DRIED PEACH CRUMB PUDDING

¾ cup cooked dried peach pulp, drained and chopped
2 cups hot milk
1 cup soft bread crumbs
Grated lemon rind
2 tablespoons butter
2 eggs
⅓ cup sugar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
Speck of salt

Add the crumbs, butter and sugar to the hot milk. [illegible] Stir in the peach pulp, lemon juice and a bit of the rind. Fold in the eggs beaten. Pour into a buttered baking dish and bake [illegible] 350 degrees F. until firm. Serve with a sauce made from the peach juice.

Maybe you have always thought of dried apples as a tasteless, insipid and thoroughly unsatisfactory substitute for the fresh fruit, but if you will try this custard pie I think you'll change this opinion.

DRIED APPLE CUSTARD PIE

2 cups strained dried apple pulp
1 tablespoon butter
½ cup sugar
Grated lemon rind
2 tablespoons lemon juice
3 eggs
2 cups hot milk
½ cup brown sugar
Pastry

Line a pie plate with plain pastry making fluted edge. Bake in [illegible] oven until it begins to color, remove and cool. Soak dried apples over night [illegible] cook until soft and then rub through a sieve. Add the butter and sugar to the hot apple pulp, the lemon juice and a little of the grated rind. Beat the egg yolks slightly and add the hot milk gradually. Stir this eggs and milk mixture into the apple. Cool slightly and pour into the baked crust. Bake in a very slow oven until firm. Then cover with a meringue made from the egg whites and the granulated sugar. Brown in slow oven.

Here's a combination of [illegible] oatmeal and corn meal which [illegible] may not think would get [illegible] word on "fine" but which I assure [illegible] is especially good.

OATMEAL DATE PUDDING

2 cups milk
2 cups cold cooked oatmeal
⅓ cup corn meal
3 eggs
1 cup dates
1-3 cup brown sugar

Heat the milk in a double boiler and sift in the corn meal gradually. Cook about half an hour. Stone and cut the dates before measuring. Add the oatmeal and the dates to the meal mixture after removing from the fire. Stir in the egg yolks beaten slightly with the sugar and fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into a buttered baking dish and bake in a rather slow oven [illegible] degrees F. for half an hour. Serve with cream.

Glance at yourself in the mirror. If telltale streaks of gray are stealing into your hair, do what thousands of men and women have done to banish them.

Hair No Longer Gray

Do you want youthful hair, glowing, soft, radiantly healthy? There is a clean, colorless liquid, known as Kolor-Bak, which has enabled thousands of men and women to take years from their appearance—to keep their rightful places in the swift-moving world of business and society.

Kolor-Bak is not mussy or unpleasant to apply like ordinary dyes. You need feel no embarrassment in using it, for the hair does not change color instantly, which is often so awkward.

With Kolor-Bak, gray hair regains its natural shade gradually but surely. You scarcely see its effects; yet often it accomplishes its purpose in a week.

And Kolor-Bak also acts as a tonic, routing dandruff, preventing itching and giving the hair an exquisite softness and youthful lustre.

Kolor-Bak is easy and pleasant to apply, just like water, and the same bottle may be used by anyone. Just make the test. If desired results do not appear, your money will be returned instantly. Guarantee in each package.

GILDED KISSES By Beatrice Burton

A Live Serial of Love and Temptation Right Here In Boston

[illegible] to her. She stepped [illegible] Mrs. Mittleton [illegible] down the [illegible] of the black coat. "I saved [illegible] for you, not for [illegible]," [illegible] an indignant [illegible]. [illegible] "Do you think [illegible] the coat, dear?"

[illegible] took it off [illegible] about it for a little [illegible] anything in a hurry," she [illegible] "Let's all go and have a [illegible] lunch, and by [illegible] I'll have made up my mind."

By the time the [illegible] of them had [illegible] at a little [illegible] across the street from the [illegible] it was five minutes to one.

"My stars! My lunch hour's just about over," Mary Rose exclaimed, wiping her lips with her paper napkin. "I have to sprint back to the office just as fast as I can."

[illegible] don't be late [illegible] wonder. [illegible] Mr. Manners [illegible] again," Flossie [illegible].

Her [illegible] surprised even [illegible] at her. "Why, Flossie Mittleton! What's that you're saying to Mary Rose?"

"She got me, all right," said Flossie, with her nose in the air, and would say no more.

JOHN'S AGONY

Mary Rose [illegible] her purse, took out her [illegible] and crushed it into her mother's hand. "Here, Mother [illegible] and don't dare to come home without that coat. You see that she buys it, won't you, Flossie?"

But Flossie didn't answer. A good-looking man with red hair, who sat at a nearby table, had just discovered her presence in the universe, and seemed to be hard smitten already.

Flossie smiled at him, and as she left the place, he got up to leave too, leaving a dollar bill and a half-eaten slab of lemon pie on the table in his haste.

And when he lost her in the crowd out in the street, he felt as [illegible] the sun had gone in, and clouds [illegible] darkened all the sky.

Mary Rose was half an hour late. She walked straight into John Manners' office and stood before his desk.

"Mr. Manners, I'm sorry I'm late. I took my mother shopping," she said to him, not daring to raise her eyes to his. She hadn't looked at him all day.

"I wish you'd look at me when you talk to me, Mary Rose," he answered.

FLOSSIE'S FRAUD

"I—I couldn't talk to you if I [illegible]!" Her breath caught in her throat as she said it. He got up and came around the desk to her, put one of his hard, brown hands under her chin and lifted her face up toward his own.

"This is torment to me—having you here and not being able to take you in my arms," he said to her between teeth that were clenched. "I've never wanted anything in my life the way I want you. You're everything I want."

Months afterward she remembered what he said to her that afternoon [illegible] held it close and warm against her heart [illegible] her memory of that day when she thought [illegible] her heart was breaking.

That night when she got home [illegible] But her mother and Flossie were [illegible] Mary Rose opened [illegible]

"W[illegible] did you [illegible] that coat?" she [illegible] the coat with its [illegible] short jacket was far [illegible] garment for Mrs. Mittleton.

Her mother gave a nervous little [illegible]. And even before she spoke Mary Rose knew what had happened.

"Well, after I looked at the black coat again it didn't seem quite as nice as it did at first," she faltered. "So I decided not to buy a coat just yet—and I lent Flossie [illegible] money [illegible] gave me to [illegible] Mary Rose [illegible]

[illegible] Mary Rose [illegible] and went out of the room. She knew that she couldn't say what she had to say while Aunt Henny Blair was in the house. Aunt Henny knew too much about Flossie as it was.

But presently when she heard her go down the front steps and cross the lawn to her own house, she went downstairs. Flossie was in the [illegible] room [illegible] "A Perfect Day" [illegible]

"[illegible] 'A Perfect Day,'" Mary Rose told her. "It's been a perfect day for you, all right, all right. I should think you'd have been ashamed to take that coat and [illegible] mother go without one when you know how she needs one."

Flossie laughed, as he went on—"and you come to the end of a pe-erfect da-ay—" Then her hands came down on the keys with a crashing discord.

MARY IS ANGRY

"You'd never have lent me the money, yourself, if you'd died for it!" she said in high triumph. "It makes me laugh to think how I put one over on you, Miss Smarty. I heard what you said to mother this morning about my borrowing that money for a pair of shoes."

"Borrowing?" Mary Rose repeated scornfully. "Why, you just stole that money! You'll never pay it back, as long as you live. And you know it. I suppose there's a pig in every family, and you're the pig in this one."

Flossie stared at her open-mouthed. It was [illegible] unlike Mary Rose to have an outburst like this. She had expected her to be a little unpleasant about the coat, but [illegible] meaning.

"Don't think you're going to get away with this," Mary Rose went on, "because you're not. I'm going to take it back to the store in the morning and send the [illegible] to Mother. They [illegible] them for me."

"Yes, unless I wear it tonight," Flossie came back at her.

"I'll see that you don't." Mary Rose was out of the room like a flash. She ran upstairs and put the pale gray coat back in its box and locked it up in the hall closet. She hid the key under the hall matting. Then she went down to supper.

But Flossie was not at the table. "She won't eat with you," Mrs. Mittleton explained. "She's going over to have a bite with Aunt Henny. She says you called her a pig and she's never [illegible]."

At that [illegible] Flossie came into the kitchen. She swaggered across it and at the door she turned and looked at Mary Rose.

"You'll be sorry for this," she blazed at her. "I'll get even with you, if it's the last thing I ever do. You watch me!"

FLOSSIE'S REVENGE

She was true to her word.

The next morning she left the house a half hour before Mary Rose did. And when John Manners opened the door of his office at eight thirty she was there waiting for him, perched on one corner of his desk like a yellow butterfly.

"You don't like me, do you?" she asked him when he asked her what she wanted.

"[illegible] I like you. Why shouldn't I?" he asked, wondering what possessed her to be here at this hour cross-questioning him.

She shook her beautiful head. "No, you don't like me," she repeated, and there was a hint of sadness in the droop of her ripe mouth. She sighed.

"I've done everything I could to make you like me—but you won't even notice me. But that doesn't make any real difference—I still think a lot of you.

"And please believe that it's because I do like you that I'm telling you this," she went on, twisting her fingers together. "Mary Rose told me something about you—"

He started.—"Mary Rose!"

"She told me that you have a case on her and that she's been stringing you along just for the fun of it. [illegible] to those things sometimes."

Her voice trailed o[illegible] and she got down from the desk. "I must go now before she comes," she said. "Forgive me for telling on my own sister, but I couldn't bear to see her doing this to you. You know she's engaged to Dr. Fitz[illegible], don't you?"

John Manners shook his head, and ran his hand across his forehead. When he took it away it was wet with perspiration.

"Oh, yes, been engaged to him for years. Crazy about him," she said. "They expect to be married most any day."

When Mary Rose came in five minutes later John was not at his desk.

"He left word that you were to take dictation from Mr. Dexter this morning," Miss Minnick told her. "It seems that Flossie has the files department all tangled up, and Sam Jessup has gone there to try to straighten things out, and I knew that crazy kid never could keep things in order. [illegible]"

[illegible] Mary Rose [illegible]

She picked up her pad and [illegible] and went down the corridor to [illegible]

Dexter's [illegible]some office.

"[illegible] down," he said to [illegible] looking up. "I'll be ready for [illegible] a minute—" He went [illegible]

[illegible] almost [illegible] Mrs. Rose [illegible] Mrs. Dexter [illegible]

"Go [illegible] and [illegible] ter ba[illegible] up and [illegible]

"So this [illegible] woman [illegible] the [illegible] woman [illegible] my home."

(To be continued)

Does Mary Rose explain to Mrs. Dexter or does she protect Flossie? What would you do under similar circumstances? Tomorrow's installment will tell.

DAILY SHORT STORY

JACK LENDS A HAND

By Louise Peple Armstrong

"OH, Mother," [illegible] Mrs. [illegible] "we've organized a [illegible] 'The Helping [illegible]' [illegible] enthusias[illegible] ton had read of something of [illegible] ... to have [illegible] ... word [illegible]

"[illegible] The Helping Hand," [illegible] Jackie who [illegible] window [illegible] "[illegible] another [illegible] for [illegible] girls to get together and gossip [illegible] with [illegible] superiority."

Ignored Him.

His sister cast a [illegible] glance in his direction and then ignored him.

"We're planning to start by home making a [illegible]," she continued, sitting down beside her mother on the low stool she always liked, and looking up into her face with the eager eyes of youth. "And we're going to put what we've learned into actual practice! We should be able to do much good. too, right here in this town—we'll go into the humbler homes here, and teach the women all about balanced diets, sanitation, and all that sort of thing. Of course we shall have a trained nurse working with us at first, with the babies—"

"What babies, Dolly?" asked her Grandmother Holworthy, looking up from the book in which she had been immersed. "You girls haven't any babies—unless you [illegible] to make [illegible] and take the dolls you so [illegible] cast aside several years ago."

"Oh, [illegible] don't be silly—the babies of the poor of course. That Wilkerson baby, for instance! Dora [illegible] cook says the little thing has the measles something terrible, and she doesn't think it's getting the proper care! I've been devoted to that family especially, and I was awfully interested in hearing—"

Not a Darned Sock.

"You'd better leave the Wilkerson's to do their own housekeeping and baby-nursing," interpolated Jackie in severe tones, "and stay home a bit with your own duties! Tom Winston said this morning that he'd looked all through the dresser and not a darned sock anywhere—"

"Oh, Jackie, do be quiet—or else follow your own counsels and mind your own business!" cried his exasperated sister. "Children!" exclaimed Mother Holworthy, "you should both be ashamed!"

"I know, Mother—'Let dogs delight, to bark and bite!'" retorted Jackie with fine impudence, as he gathered up his school books to leave the room. At the door he turned to glare at his sister. "You girls make me sick!" he told her in disgust.

"Now, isn't he awful?" said little Mrs. Winston to her mother. "Children nowadays are so overbearing!"

And Grandma Holworthy smiled behind the book she read.

"I think your idea is a good one, Dolly," her mother told her. "And the Wilkerson family should be glad of your help. Mr. Wilkerson is not a steady worker, and they say he drinks—his wife has had a hard time, especially since the baby came. Only be careful how you go about helping your less fortunate neighbors! The poor don't like being patronized—I think that's what Jackie had in mind." Mother Holworthy smiled. "He's certainly taken your new club to heart!" she said.

"The Helping Hand" came into being with enthusiastic support, and because of the wise and tactful help and suggestions of the elder members of the community, it flourished and did much good. Then, too, it was such a little town that the poor and the prosperous had always managed to live on friendly terms with each other!

Real Neighborly

"Your Dolly came over and tended the baby all morning, while I did the washing," Mrs. Wilkerson told Mother Holworthy at market. "It was real neighborly of her—and she's a great hand with children! She's got ideas about housekeepin', too," she added. "A right smart girl, ma'am, and Mr. Tom Wiston done hisself proud to get her!"

"I'm glad she's a help, Mrs. Wilkerson," replied Mother Holworthy. "Dolly hasn't much to do around the house, and she's got lots of energy—keep her at work, it'll be good for her."

When Jackie heard of the conversation that night, he snorted in disgust.

"I'll give those girls a week to get tired of it!" he told his mother. "It's fun for a while, showing other folks how to run their houses and bring up their children—but Dolly's set aren't keen on doing anything really useful. They'd quit cold in any emergency—'The Helping Hand'! Pshaw!"

Tom Winston smiled across the living room at his little wife.

"Don't let the old cynic discourage you, Dolly," he said cheerily. "Smithfield walked all over the Home Team this afternoon, and he's sore at the world!"

"That's all right!" retorted the youth with a flush. "Make fun! It's just that I can't stand seeing those girls so hypocritical. Just showing off—taking up the poor as a sort of fad!"

Tapped at Window

It was Saturday evening a week later, and near supper-time. Jackie was hurrying up a back street, making a bee-line for the rear entrance of the Holworthy Home, when he heard someone call him softly, and at first he thought his ears had deceived him, but the call was repeated, and he looked around in surprise to locate it.

Someone tapped on a window above, and looking up, he saw his sister's face there, very queer and white in the light thrown by the street lamp! In a moment he knew—it was the Wilkerson home! But why was Dolly there alone? And what could be the matter—he felt that something was the matter! With this premonition of dread, he retraced his steps, and presently was trying the front door. It was locked! But a locked house means nothing to one just past the days of boyhood, and a moment later Jackie had unlatched one of the lower windows on the little porch with the long blade of his knife, and silently raised the sash.

He crept as cautiously up the narrow stairway, and at the top came suddenly upon Dolly. She was holding a little bundle in her arms, and her face was very white and scared-looking. A low moan issued from the bundle, and weak sounding gasps.

"The baby," explained Dolly in a whisper. "It's awfully sick. Pneumonia, I believe—it was taken suddenly! Mrs. Wilkerson's away, she's staying longer than I thought!"

"What are you whispering about?" asked Jackie, whispering himself.

"Mr. Wilkerson!" Dolly told him, in a still lower tone, and with a little shudder. "He came in, very drunk. I was scared of him—and I—locked him up in the bedroom! He acted awfully at first, I thought he'd break down the door—but now he's quiet, and I hope he's asleep! Jackie, run quick and get Dr. Andrews! The child has been so ill, and I'm frightened!"

"And leave you here with that fellow?" protested Jackie. "Not much, I will!"

With her free hand Dolly pushed him vigorously toward the stairs. "Don't be a little goose. Go, before he wakes up! Go, before anything happens to the baby! I tell you, it must have the doctor, quick!"

And Jackie went.

Joining the Helping Hand

Two hours later, after the doctor had arrived and pronounced a case of croup, after Mrs. Wilkerson had returned and the now sober Mr. Wilkerson had been admonished and thoroughly frightened by both the doctor and his wife, Jackie and his sister departed. Hand in hand, they hurried toward home, remembering the late hour, and the family who would be anxious about them. "They'll be worried to death, and think we've been in some accident," Dolly said. "And I'm so hungry," she added.

When they had turned the corner, and saw the welcoming light from the kitchen window, she turned to her brother and laughed out suddenly.

"Why, Jackie," she exclaimed. "You've joined the 'Helping Hand' after all!"

Jackie grinned and hugged her impulsively. "So I have!" he answered briefly.

FOXY GRANDPA TELLS INTERESTING BEDTIME STORY

By Foxy Grandpa

"TOO bad we're not camels," said Bobby as we divided the last water in my canteen. We had used up Bobby's and it was getting pretty serious now, because we hadn't had any water since morning.

We thought of course, we would run across a stream in that jungle in Africa. But we hadn't seen the smallest sign of a stream or spring.

Poor little Bobby—how thirsty he was. But he never said a word. Bobby is a real sport. I heard a little girl say that once when she came home from camp and I thought it was pretty good. Remember that "sportsmanship" is how you take it.

And Bobby took it well, but we were just about all in when Bunny came tearing through the thicket and shouted:

"Don't give up. I guarantee, to furnish you with water pretty soon."

What good news that was. I don't ask any questions or go into the whys and wherefores, for I knew that Bunny's word was good.

"Just follow me," he directed.

I lifted Bobby on my back and followed my little rabbit through the jungle.

It was growing dark now, but I just kept on following the little fellow blindly. My throat was parched and I could hardly get my breath. Poor Bobby was miserable, because it was hot and damp.

I noticed that Bunny kept looking down on the ground as he led the way, but what with feeling so badly myself and carrying Bobby I didn't take much interest in the path which I was following.

"Here it is!" shouted Bunny, when I was just about ready to drop.

Sure enough there was a stream and so thirsty were we that we almost threw ourselves into it. How good it tasted!

We were so busy drinking and washing our faces with the cool water that we didn't [illegible] what was just across the stream from us. What do you think it was? A great big rhinoceros—standing right there looking at us. We were so surprised.

For a moment he stood there and then grunted and trotted off into the darkness.

"We found the water on account of the rhino," said Bunny. "I followed his trail. They always live near water and if you see their tracks you can bet your whiskers there's water nearby."

How to Have Soft, Pretty White Hands

Use Ice-Mint

Many women will undoubtedly be glad to know how they may have beautiful, white, soft, pretty hands regardless of the work they have to do. The secret lies in rubbing a little Ice-Mint into the hands occasionally preferably just before retiring at night. In the morning you will be agreeably surprised at the pleasant transformation that has been wrought by even a single application. Ice-Mint is made from a Japanese product that is simply marvelous for its beautifying properties whether used on the hands or face. Regardless of what kind of work a woman does she should have pretty hands as they are really the true marks of refinement. A few applications of Ice-Mint will actually make any woman proud of her hands and skin. It costs little and is sold and recommended by good druggists everywhere.

RHYMING OPTIMIST

OH, Little Child, with smile like Spring, when comes this joyousness you bring? This gladness sweet as April breeze among the budding apple trees? Why is it given you to lift the clouds that round our spirits drift, till dim eyes glimpse blue skies again and dull ears catch life's gay refrain? No answer comes and yet we know that men have ever found it so, when childhood's treble laughter rings care vanishes and woe takes wings. Age pauses, hearing that shrill strain which briefly lends it youth again, to vision, for a little space, its by-gone days of careless grace. Oh, Little Child, sweet magic lies within your guileless smile and eyes, and though the grim years march along, you heal their scars with treble song!

"Pape's Cold Compound" Breaks a Cold Right Up

Take two tablets every three hours until three doses are taken. The first dose always gives relief. The second and third doses completely break up the cold. Pleasant and safe to take. Contains no quinine or opiates. Millions use "Pape's Cold Compound." Price thirty-five cents. Druggists guarantee it.

Scores Victory Over ——

Piles. The very thought of bowling would cause a man with piles to shudder. But it needn't, for the worst case of piles is relieved in a very simple manner! If you have them—in any form—just do this:

Ask any druggist for a little box of Pyramid pile suppositories. Use one or two—and forget you ever had hemorrhoids! It's just that easy! Thousands of men and women have found it out. So, it's a pity anybody should suffer long. The bleeding, or badly protruding piles are just as susceptible to the soothing, assuaging action of Pyramid. Only, remember the name.

Pyramid pile suppositories are just sixty cents. Why not prove what these marvelous suppositories can do for you? A free trial plainly wrapped sent those who write Pyramid Drug Co., 1000 Pyramid Bldg., Marshall, Michigan.

Boston and Maine Reorganization

The General Readjustment Committee announces that up to January 15, there has been deposited 82¾ of all stock, and daily deposits continue. Additional deposits are necessary before bondholders should be asked to deposit their bonds for extension.

All stockholders who have not yet deposited, and particularly the holders of first preferred shares, should make their deposits immediately, unless they are willing to face the risk and assume the responsibility of defeating the plan by their failure to cooperate.

'JOY RIDING' IN NEW ISSUES IS DYING

By FRANK H MELOON,
Financial Editor

Perhaps you never heard of "joy riding" in a stock issue, but that is the term used for those who, in the glad old days, used to secure big blocks of a new issue at pre-listing prices and then sell them at fat profits as soon as they were listed.

A big Boston and New York stock exchange house has attacked this system so efficiently that the system that the house may be diagnosed as dying. When this house puts out a new stock issue, it is listed just under the offering price and it stays there until all the would-be "joy riders" are tired out and have accepted their losses. After that the stock is allowed to advance. This encourages investors and discourages speculators. Apparently no one loves a speculator.

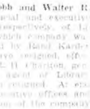
Is Jesse Livermore, former Boston stock market "wizard," really bearish? Recent pressure on stocks over the past ten days has been accompanied by reports of aggressive bearish operations in which Mr. Livermore was said to be taking a leading part. Friends of Mr. Livermore, however, are inclined to believe that he has not been active recently on the selling side.



Jesse Livermore

He is said to have put out substantial short lines, particularly in the motor group, on the upswing of the industrial shares last Fall which reached its peak on November 6. But his offerings were declared to be based on the theory that the rise had proceeded too fast "rather than that a major downward movement was in prospect." It is intimated that on days of recent weakness he was buying, not selling, and that he reaped an attractive profit on his short contracts.

Charles H. Cobb and Walter R. Washburn, financial and executive vice-presidents, respectively, of Library Bureau, which company was recently acquired by Rand Kardex Bureau, Inc., have resigned, effective March 1. R. H. Charlton, general purchasing agent of Library Bureau, has also resigned. At end of this week executive offices and accounting division of the company will be moved to Tonawanda, N. Y., home office of Rand Kardex Bureau. The Cambridge plant of Library Bureau will continue in operation as a production unit.

General Readjustment Committee of the Boston & Maine Railroad states that up to January 15 there had been deposited under the readjustment plan 82¾ per cent. of all stock, and deposits continue daily.

* * *

Additional deposits are necessary, the committee says, before bondholders should be asked to deposit their bonds for extension. The committee adds: "All stockholders who have not yet deposited, and particularly the holders of first preferred shares, should make their deposits immediately unless they are willing to face the risk and assume the responsibility of defeating the plan by their failure to cooperate."

Mr. H. T. Dunn, President of the Company, writes to us as follows:

HISTORY AND BUSINESS

The Fisk Rubber Company, incorporated in Massachusetts in 1912, is one of the five largest manufacturers of pneumatic and solid tires for passenger automobiles, busses and trucks in the United States, and also does a large business in the manufacture of bicycle tires and tire sundries. The Company also manufactures a considerable quantity of fabric used in the manufacture of tires. Its tire plants are located at Chicopee Falls, Massachusetts and Cudahy, Wisconsin, with a combined capacity of 30,000 casings and 50,000 tubes per day. Its fabric plants, consisting of a complete cord tire fabric unit, are located at Jewett City, Connecticut, and Pawtucket, Rhode Island. These plants are efficiently planned and soundly constructed and the mechanical equipment is of modern design. In addition, the Company leases from its subsidiary, The Fisk Tire Fabric Company, and operates an established fabric mill in New Bedford, Massachusetts, having 58,000 spindles.

EARNINGS

Consolidated net sales and earnings of the Company and its subsidiary selling companies for the three years and ten months ended October 31, 1925, as certified by Price, Waterhouse & Co., are as follows:

FINANCE

—By B. C. FORBES—

First Impressions of Miami are bewildering, confusing, favorable and unfavorable.

On every side is hectic activity. The sidewalks are as seething as those of the White Lights, the Loop, Detroit, or Coney Island on a hot Summer Sunday. The principal industry, you reason, must be selling lots. Real estate offices, ranging from tiny wall holes to public halls equipped with a full-sized band, outnumbered any other kind of business establishment. Neither the Bowery nor the Barbary Coast ever had as many saloons as Miami has real estate offices.

Only a few of them seem to be busy. I had always pictured Miami as a health resort, a rest resort. Hadn't you? Well, whatever it may have been in times past, it certainly is no longer a "rest" resort or anything else suggestive of rest and repose.

Interviewed by Elmer E. Paine, financial editor of the Miami Daily News, I made this statement:

"I had been told that it was impossible for a visitor to walk along the streets of your city without being repeatedly buttonholed, as on the East Side of New York, where second-hand clothes are sold, by real estate sharks, and mauled and tugged at in a wild endeavor to get you to sign on the dotted line.

"Well, not once have I even been asked by any one to buy anything."

Democratic Party Lacks Democracy

IF there were more Democrats like Senator Reed of Missouri and Senator Blease of South Carolina there would be more Democrats. The policies of the Democratic party have made Democrats scarce in the United States, and they are becoming scarcer.

The party began to die during the last year of the Wilson administration, as was conspicuously evident from the fact that it lost control of the House of Representatives at that time.

The unpopularity of the political policies of the Democratic party can well be judged by the astounding fact that the party went out of power immediately after it won for America and for the world the greatest war in all history.

There is no other notable example in the whole record of time, either in this country or others, where a party which had directed and conducted so tremendous a popular and patriotic achievement was, nevertheless, defeated and rejected at the polls because of the utter folly of its post-war policies.

If there were any need of further establishing the unpopularity of these millstone policies with which the Democratic party has linked its fate, that unpopularity has been additionally and sufficiently demonstrated in every national election that has been held since the Wilson administration.

If these Democratic policies were fundamentally Democratic principles, it could easily be understood that the Democratic party would prefer defeat and utter disaster adhering to its essential principles rather than success attained through the sacrifice of fundamental democracy; but these unpopular policies, which have dragged the Democratic party down to the point of political extinction, are not only NOT fundamentally Democratic, but they are not in accord with the history of the party or in accord with the principles of the founders of the party or in harmony with the sentiments of any great Democrat or any great American, from Jefferson to Cleveland or from Washington to Roosevelt.

In fact, the whole policy of the American nation from the time of its foundation by the fathers and its establishment by Washington has been in definite and direct opposition to the unpopular and un-American and, consequently, un-Democratic policies which proved so fatal to the Democratic party at the end of the Wilson administration and since that time.

Why, then, does the Democratic party dully adhere to policies that are not popular, not Democratic, not historically American, and which are continually defeating the party and will eventually apparently destroy it?

President Wilson's sad mental condition is sufficient excuse for his having enunciated and pursued unsound policies toward the close of his career, but surely, not all the Democratic senators or representatives and party leaders, who favor the politically disastrous and nationally treacherous policy of the League of Nations, have a similar excuse for action so unsound and so opposed to the historic policies of their party and their country.

But if they have not this excuse, why do these Democratic leaders desperately adhere to this unsound and unsafe League of Nations policy, in spite of all the hard facts with which their political shins have come in contact during the last twelve years?

Do the repeated utterances and exhortations of Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, Jackson, Lincoln, Cleveland and Roosevelt mean nothing to them compared to the dictum of one man who, no matter how admirable he might have been at his best, was not in a condition to determine the policies of a great country and a great party toward the sorrowful conclusion of his notable career? It is time that the pitiful last hour policies of President Wilson were abandoned for his sake and the sake of the party. It is time that the Democratic party and the Democratic leaders reverted to democracy.

If all the Democratic leaders were today as soundly Democratic as Senator Reed and Senator Blease they would build up their party and sustain their principles on the old, firm foundations which the great Democrats and great Americans of the past laid for them and on which so many great Democratic Presidents, from Jefferson to Cleveland, built the high towers of Democratic success and service.

It was the favorite remark of Samuel J. Tilden that the Democratic party would succeed whenever it had the courage to be Democratic, and this declaration can be paraphrased to say that the Democratic party will succeed whenever it has the intelligence to be Democratic—the historical knowledge to understand what have been the patriotic, and consequently the successful, Democratic policies of the past; the common sense as well as the natural Democratic sentiment to follow these policies, rather than to go ghost dancing after some fantastic and fanatic scheme entirely opposed to them.

If the Democratic leaders do not know in their own hearts and through their sense of public sentiment the way to party success, they have a chart and a guide in the words and works of the great Democrats who preceded them and who proved their knowledge of Democratic doctrine and popular sentiment by the success of their leadership.

There is a great opportunity at this moment for the Democratic party to come back into power and into popular favor by taking an attitude contrary to that of the Republican party and in harmony with the policies of the great Americans of the past, both Democratic and Republican, in harmony with the sentiment of the Democratic masses, who have repeatedly expressed at the polls—the only effective place—their opposition to all plans of involving the United States in foreign entanglements.

Hundreds of thousands of Democrats left their party because their party wanted to make them and their nation violate the injunction of the fathers to keep free from entangling European alliances. Those genuine Democrats are ready to come back to their party if their party will take a truly Democratic stand on national and international policies.

They were deceived by the false promises of the Republican party. They were led to believe by Republican denunciation of the League of Nations that the Republican party was a better and more patriotic American party than the Democratic party was.

But the Republican party has basely betrayed these good Democrats and good Americans.

It pledged itself to keep out of the League of Nations and to keep free from foreign entanglements.

It promised sacredly to follow the injunctions of Washington and the historic policy of the nation. But the Republican party has repudiated its pledges and has paid more heed to the propaganda of speculative bankers than it has to the sincere sentiments of the patriotic masses.

It is now eager to enter the League of Nations, provided only it enter by way of the World Court of the League and so find excuse and apology for its base betrayal of the trust the public imposed in it.

So when the Republican party goes before the country at the next election it will go with such a despicable record of deceit that it cannot hold even the decent respect of its own followers.

Now, then, is the time to bring the Democratic masses back into the Democratic party at the national elections by giving the people a Democratic issue which they, as good Democrats and good Americans, can honestly support—an American issue in opposition to the League of Nations, in opposition to the World Court of the League of Nations, and in opposition to all participation in European conflicts and complications.

There should be one party in this country which stands clearly and cleanly for the historic policy of independence and self-reliance and freedom from foreign entanglements, which has made this country the great, prosperous, peaceful nation that it is.

That party should be the Democratic party, and it will win whenever it shall have the courage to be Democratic, the wisdom to represent the true sentiments of the Democratic masses of this country.

MEDITATIONS OF A WIFE

A WOMAN is as young as she looks to the man who loves her.

* * *

"Good salesmanship" is the art of getting a man to want to buy a marriage-license, when he only dropped in for a couple of kisses.

Helen Rowland

If you want to get along with the He-sex, never look too closely at the back of a small boy's neck after he's "washed" it, or at the logic of a man's excuses.

* * *

A man doesn't offer to give his heart to a woman, any more—he merely lends it to her, like a library book, for a week or so, with the date of return clearly understood.

* * *

It is "middle-age," when the love songs in musical comedies begin to seem a little longer, and the love-scenes between the dancing a little tiresome.

* * *

A married woman always clutches at a compliment, and carries it home and lays it before her husband as triumphantly as she would a vindication.

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

A WELL-KNOWN physician says that walking is the healthiest exercise in the world. The men are willing to believe him, but he'll have a hard job convincing the women.

WALKING may be healthy but the average woman would rather be a little sick and ride.

LIMOUSINES are the only substitutes for corn plasters.

AUTOMOBILES have put thousands of foot-specialists out of business.

HUNDREDS of chiropodists are now driving taxicabs.

THERE'S more than one way of catering to people's feet.

OUT of the fifty thousand cabs in New York City, half of them are run for bunions.

BUT some of them are so dilapidated that you can get corns while you ride.

ONE taxi was so rickety that a passenger got callouses on his wooden leg.

HOW TO TEST YOUR RESOLUTIONS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE only resolution that is of any account, said a philosopher, is one which contains something that must be done now.

A resolution never passes over from the sphere of vain wishing to actual practice unless it contains something to be done immediately.

Test your resolution by this: A resolution that contains a thing to be done when an emergency arises is of no value. It must contain something to be done in an emergency which has already risen, something which can be translated into action.

A resolution that is made an actual deed has a double power. It fixes itself in the habits. It has got into a place where it can grow and strengthen your character.

A resolution that is not put into practice at all and contains nothing that can be put into immediate practice is like the winged seed which is blown across the fields and stops to take no root.

The test of resolutions is always what good they produce, and that can never be told until they have begun to be put in practice.

It is a good plan to scrutinize your weaknesses and shortcomings and make resolution to do better. But it is a better plan to begin at once, and this can be done without resolutions.

The firmest rock upon which character stands is the rock that is composed of deeds that you have done, not of resolutions that you have made.

It is better to do a thing every day without a resolution than to make a resolution every day.

It must be remembered that a broken resolution is a source of weakness. It undermines our self-respect and opens the door for further error.

But a good resolution that is kept is a source of strength.

"You Said It, Marceline!"

By MARCELINE D'ALROY

ON "WIFELY DOUBTS"

MOST MEN have an EYE
For a PRETTY GIRL, and
MOST of their wives
KNOW IT!
SOME wives say they
DON'T CARE, others
Have STOPPED jollying.
AS LONG as a HUSBAND
Confines his attention
To ALL WOMEN, the WIFE need not be
ANXIOUS, for it is Hardly likely they could
ALL want him!
But when a man
HAS HIS EYE on
ONE SINGLE GIRL, then
MOST wives think it
Is their DUTY
To SEE the girl
Does not GET HIS EAR ALSO,
Oh she MIGHT pour
So much "honey" into
It that SOME of it
May STICK. Many
Wives have their troubles.
WHEN A WOMAN has GRAVE DOUBTS of
Her husband it means she
Has GRAVER doubts of HERSELF.

BURSTING BUSINESS BUBBLE SELDOM HURTS THE WISE

There has been a boom in your town and a small sum of money invested by you some time ago has suddenly jumped in value to heights you never dreamed.

It is such a surprise to you and so acceptable in your present financial condition that you almost go wild with enthusiasm.

You had never hoped to call any such sum of money your own.

You are not a man versed in Wall Street and your education did not include the methods of big business nor tips on stocks and bonds.

You immediately, however, imagine yourself a great financier and quite lose sight of the fact that it is through no business sagacity of your own that you many times doubled your money.

The conditions which enhanced the market value of your investments is something beyond your control—in fact you cannot understand how it all came about.

Look here, old man, it is time for you to exercise your bump of caution—time for you to go get some outside angles on the changed business conditions in your town.

Don't borrow beyond your depth to invest again, for bubbles burst.
